EARNSHAW, GROVE TIE CARDS' BATS

World Series Contenders Move Back to Quaker
City Today With Champs Needing One Win.

BY FRANK GETTY.
United News Sports Editor.
SPORTSMAN'S PARK, ST.
LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 6.—(UN)—A prodigious wallop from the bat of Jimmy Foxx, which soared through the gloom of a misty twilight far into the distant stands, broke up a great ball game and the world series deadlock today, the Philadelphia Athletics defeating the St. Louis Cardinals, thereby, 2 to 0.

Jimmy's home run came dramatically in the ninth inning after 38,844 fans in Sportsman's Park had thrilled to the great pitching of Burleigh Grimes, and his opponents on the mound, George Earnshaw and Lefty Grove. It came just when the game, one of the most thrilling in the world series history, seemed likely to go on into extra innings and a moist nightfall. It scored Mickey Cochrane ahead of Foxx and broke the stout heart of old Burleigh Grimes, and put the Athletics out in front in the series, three games to two.

A magnificent pitching duel between the veteran southpaw and the youthful Earnshaw marked the first seven innings. The Athletics pitcher had allowed only two hits, and only two men to reach second.
Burleigh, dusting off the Philadelphia batters until their coaches cried in protest, also allowed only two hits in the first seven innings and not a Mackman got as far as second.

Then in the eighth, American league champions filled the bases, assisted by some rather ragged infield play on the part of the Cardinals.
With two men on, Connie Mack waved to the pitcher, Jimmy Moore, to bat for Earnshaw and sent Lefty Grove to the bull pen to warm up. Moore walked, but two force plays got Grimes out of trouble.

The Cardinals, heartened by their success in checking this dangerous rally, faced Grove with their confidence restored and the fans roaring for a score.

But the Athletics' southpaw accused Taylor Douthett to pop to Max Bishop and Sparky Adams grounded to Jimmy Foxx. There was a wild yell of hope when Frankie Frisch singled to center, but Jim Bottomley struck out to end the inning.

Still there was no hint of the calamity that was to befall the toiling Grimes and his white-clad mates in the ninth.

The eighth was packed with excitement. Miller, the first man up, grounded to Gilbert. Haas crossed the Carps by dumping a neat bunt down the third-base line and beating Grimes' savage throw by a whisker.

With one strike and one ball on Boley, Haas tried to steal second.
Wilson's accurate throw to Frisch had him out easily, and Umpire Gei-sel's hand whipped up in a signal to let effect. Then, in the ninth, Haas and second baseman across the voice of "Mule" Haas, calling the ump's attention to the fact that Frisch had dropped the ball. Geisel reversed his decision and declared Haas safe. Frisch and his fellow Redbirds believed loud and long, but acquired nothing but heartburn.

Boley then slipped one straight to Grimes. It was a hot one and he bounced out of Burleigh's hands and over towards third. The alert Grimes scrambled after it, and having no chance to get Boley at first, flipped the ball to Adams just as Haas slid into the bag. Despite some more pictureque squawking, Haas again was declared safe.

Aviation history was made at Candler field Monday afternoon when Major Dieudonne Coste and Lieutenant Maurice Bellonte, first to make a non-stop flight from Paris to New York, were greeted by a large and enthusiastic crowd. At the upper left, Charles Loidans, Atlanta French consul, in the left foreground, is grasping the hand of Coste, in the front cockpit of the big trans-Atlantic plane, while Mayor I. N. Ragsdale is welcoming Bellonte. At the right, Coste, while Bellonte and Mr. Loidans look on approvingly, is using the wing of his plane as a writing desk to inscribe to Atlanta a few lines of greeting which are reproduced below. In the circle is shown Miss Lydia Vinour, of Atlanta, who delivered a short address of welcome in their native tongue. At the lower left is the fliers' staunch Avion-Breguet, the now noted "Question Mark," in which they spanned the Atlantic. It is painted bright scarlet, with a nose of silver.

Brazilian Rebels Approach Capital

Battle Line Forming Hundred Miles From Rio; Federal Planes Attack; Government Confident.

BY C. A. POWELL.
United News Staff Correspondent.
RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 6.—The government was understood to be considering conscription of persons between the ages of 21 and 30 as a battle between federal troops and rebels in eastern Minas Gerais state appeared imminent tonight.

The rebel front was reported to have reached a point less than 100 miles from Rio de Janeiro.

Stocks of food in warehouses in the capital were requisitioned by the government to prevent exploitation of prices.

Martial law was put in effect throughout Brazil. All banks in Rio de Janeiro were closed for 15 days.

The war office was reported to have given word of plans to attack the towns of Palmyra and Barbacena, in Minas Gerais, the large rebel state just west of the capital which has been held by revolutionist forces since the outbreak over the past week-end which faced the nation with the threat of civil war.

Government officials declared they expected to recapture these two towns, key positions in the march on Belo Horizonte, capital of Minas Gerais.

Troops in the fourth federal military district in Minas Gerais were being massed for the attack, the war minister, General Nestor Zenofero dos Passos, said in an interview in the newspaper Antica.

He declared the advance of loyal troops was being made difficult, however, because the rebels had destroyed communications. The war minister was quoted as adding that only Belo Horizonte remained perturbed, and that the federalists were making progress in their offensive.

Dr. Hector Penteado, vice president temporarily in Sao Paulo state, declared categorically alarming reports respecting conditions there. Sao Paulo is about 225 miles south of Rio de Janeiro.

Penteado declared the state was quiet and that federal and police forces remained loyal to the government.

The governor of the state of Alagoas advised the authorities that that district was also quiet.

CAMPAIGN TO CUT COTTON ACREAGE GETS UNDER WAY

Constitution's Efforts Lauded at Meeting in Washington; Total of 40 Million Acres Is Goal.

BY GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The federal farm board, in co-operation with the United States department of agriculture, today launched a comprehensive campaign for the reduction of cotton acreage in the south and the readjustment of farming programs of the southern cotton farmers.

Designed to bring about more substantial returns to the cotton farmer through the equalization of supply and demand, the move is undoubtedly the most far-reaching of its kind yet undertaken by the board in the interest of any one of the major agricultural commodities.

The campaign announced follows closely suggestions made in a leading editorial carried by The Constitution in its Sunday issue, which had been

ATLANTA FLIERS TO CAVORT OVER LAKEWOOD TODAY

Schedule of Tour to Prohibit Appearance of Coste, Bellonte at Fair, as Announced.

The skies above Lakewood park today—Aviation Day at the Southeastern fair, so designated in honor of the presence of the French fliers in the city—will bear a striking resemblance to the airways over Candler field on a busy day, as fliers and aerial stunt artists loon, zoom and cavort overhead in one of the most spectacular aviation programs presented here in many months.

In addition to scheduled aerial attractions, which include the dropping of candy to be borne earthward in tiny parachutes, daylight formation flying and night flying, numerous airmen, it is expected, will visit Lakewood by air and stage impromptu one-man and group flying circuses.

Aviation enthusiasts, however, will be denied a glimpse of Major Dieud-onne Coste and Lieutenant Maurice Bellonte, Paris-to-New York fliers, whose plan of departure will prohibit their scheduled visit to the fairgrounds.

Honor To Frenchmen.
In honor of the presence of the French fliers in Atlanta today, the program has been designated as Aviation Day. Feature air stunts and a model air contest in the afternoon and evening will take the place of headline amusements. These will be supplemented vaudeville attractions in the afternoon, while the morning will af-

Councilman Battles Fair Concessionaire

Ellis B. Barrett, councilman from the thirteenth ward, Monday afternoon quit a hectic word battle in council to engage in a pugilistic encounter—and emerged a victor.

The scene of the fray was at the Atlanta police station where Barrett went when informed that his wife had been struck with a chain while attempting to ride on the Lindy Loop at the Southeastern fair, earlier in the afternoon.

It seems that Robert Kenner, 24, employee of the L. J. Heath carnival, holding the concession at the fair, was preparing to stretch the chain as a bar to further passengers entering the loop when it cut a gash in Mrs.
Barrett's head.

Kenner claimed it was accidental, but failed to apologize and "acted proud of it," according to Barrett.
A case of disorderly conduct was booked against Barrett and set for trial October 11, while Kenner is held on a similar charge, with bond fixed at $52.

FLIERS DEPART THIS AFTERNOON

Arriving at Candler field at from Pensacola, Coste and Bel-lonte were welcomed and escorted to their hotel.

Georgia and Atlanta officials welcomed the French airmen at a banquet on the Ansley roof at 7 o'clock Monday night.
The fliers will arise at 11 o'clock this morning and breakfast.
At 12 noon, Coste and Bellonte will leave the Ansley hotel for Candler field.
The Question Mark, first Paris-to-New York airplane, will rise from a Candler field runway at 1 o'clock for Raleigh, N. C.

BY GENE HINTON, Aviation Editor.

A huge, scarlet sesquiplane, swooping out of a leaden southern sky to a perfect landing, made aviation history at Candler field at exactly 4:50 o'clock Monday afternoon.
Major Dieudonne Coste and his co-pilot and mechanic, Lieutenant Maurice Bellonte, conquerors of the treacherous east-to-west air route over the Atlantic and the first to make a non-stop flight from Paris to New York, had arrived, to return Lindbergh's epochal visit across the sea.

Their powerful plane, the "Question Mark," speeding north from Pensacola, was first discerned far to the south as a speck and the far-flung cry, "They come!" called a wave of excitement along the entire length of the east-and-west runway, where an immense crowd had assembled to greet the men who had succeeded where so many others had failed.

The dot in the sky assumed form and in a few minutes a group of it seemed almost an eternity to the watchers below—the ocean-spanning plane was zooming the field to the accompaniment of a deep-throated roar of welcome all but drowned out by the rhythmic bellow from the ship's exhaust. Prudent, Coste made two complete circles of the field, looking over the aerial surface of the municipal airport and mating certain

Ultimate World Peace Seen By Disciple of MacDonald

Rennie Smith Predicts U. S. Entrance in League of Nations—Lauds American Ideals.

A slender, curly headed member of the British parliament, modestly confessing himself a disciple of Ramsay MacDonald, Monday night pictured to a representative Atlanta audience the fulfillment of his leader's dream of universal peace and the ultimate consummation of the brotherhood of man.

He was Rennie Smith, an English statesman here on a good-will tour of this country, but speaking directly under the auspices of the Atlanta League of Women Voters at the Woman's club auditorium. Miss Eleanor Raulo, president of the league, presided, and Dr. D. P. McGeehy, of Decatur, presented Mr. Smith.

The English statesman, after baring the intimate social philosophy of MacDonald and his four and a half years of opposition—described as incidental to his major purpose—to the world war, predicted that a future generation would make a practical application of the MacDonald philosophy which Woodrow Wilson made alive when he went to the peace conference.

"We've gone a long way with the League of Nations," Mr. Smith said, "and you American people can't keep out of it. You're now holding memberships on 80 per cent of the league's committees after only 10 years of the league's existence, and in 1919 they wouldn't open a letter in Washington that had a Geneva postmark on it."

"Soon," he prophesied, "you'll be sending your representative to the league meetings. You've got a League of Nations ambassador there now—but don't tell Mr. Hoover. The 10 years of progress with the league has been simply wonderful."

Hoover Conference.

Discussing Prime Minister MacDonald's visit with President Hoover and the peace confab of the two English speaking leaders on the banks of the Rappahannock within the last two years, the British parliament member—interpreting the peace possibilities of the first visit of a reigning premier to America—said he hoped yet to know that Winston Churchill and Stalin, the soviet leader, would hunt bear together in the pine forests of Russia.

According to Mr. Smith, MacDonald came to America to clear up differences which arose after the 1927 naval conference at Geneva, to which, he said, the League of Nations lent every encouragement within its power.

"If the two English-speaking peoples of the world can't get together," Smith said, he imagined MacDonald said to Hoover, "then there is no chance for the rest of the world."

Good and Bad Allie.

"Human problems are never the organization of perfection," he declared.

"We have to deal with conflicts, with the good and the bad, with bad people and with bad institutions. The chief glory of politics is how you can get out of it the largest element of effective co-operation."

The social philosophy which Ramsay MacDonald created, Smith said, and which saw the birth of the British labor party, was founded on a belief that all human institutions and efforts are subject to change and that there is no such thing as a static human society.

To this fundamental conception of society, the British statesman said, MacDonald believed that as human society evolved its evolution led to a technique for control of the laws moving civilization.

PERSONNEL SLASH BACKED BY COUNCIL

for 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, October 14, and declared the public will be heard from.

Measures in Brief.

Briefly, the measures which the committee had referred to it were:

1. A proposal by Councilman Joseph E. Berman, of the fourth ward, to redistrict Atlanta's wards, forming six, with one council member from each of the six; three aldermanic districts, with one alderman; a mayor pro tem, and a mayor. Under the Berman paper, all officials would devote their entire time to administration of borough affairs and be paid salaries ranging from $4,800 annually to $10,000.

2. A measure recommended by the charter revision committee to reduce council proper from 26 members to 13, and the aldermanic board from 13 to 5. Salaries of officials would be increased from $50 monthly as at present to $150 monthly.

3. A measure presented by Alderman Ben T. Hulet for one councilman and one alderman from each of the 13 wards, thus cutting out one councilman and slashing the total number in the legislative body from 39 to 26.

Members of the charter revision committee precipitated the discussion when they presented the favorable recommendation on the White resolution, which had been amended to include an aldermanic board of five members.

Although there was some objection to submitting a referendum in the general election, every indication was that proponents of the change will be able to push over the measure which the charter revision committee will draft.

Referendum Predicted.

Alderman G. Everett Millican, one of the strongest proponents of the proposal to slash council "to a body which can efficiently and effectively transact Atlanta's business," predicted the committee's report will be sent to the people in the general election.

Many of the speakers declared an extraordinary vote is expected in the general election this year because of the large number of jobs which must be filled in that election due to resignations of several members.

Fred Oxford, 17, of Pike County, Is Victor In Georgia Spelling Championship Tilt

Photos by Holloway and Bennett, Staff Photographers.

Spelling sharks from 20 Georgia counties who competed for the state championship at the Southeastern Fair Monday. Pictured below are Fred Oxford, 17, of Pike county, Georgia's best speller for 1930, and Edna Nicholls, 14, of DeKalb county, runner-up.

administered by Knox Walker, of the Fulton county school system; Mrs. Kate Brown, of Henry county; and Jere A. Walls, superintendent of county schools, were two boys and two ladies. With the next misspelled word the boys gained the upper hand and finally carried the day.

Start of the spelling contest was delayed more than an hour when an objection was raised to the participation of Mrs. J. L. Waters, representing Fulton county. Mrs. Waters is a student at Central Night school, where she has as her classmates a son and a daughter, either of whom might exceed the average age represented at the spelling contest. Although she had been duly designated as the candidate from Fulton county, she won the place against all other students competing for county honors, it was declared she did not fall into the class of "girl."

Problem Decided.

In the absence of Dr. M. L. Brittain, chairman of the spelling contest committee, and Superintendent Willis A. Sutton, also of the committee, Dr. M. L. Duggan, state superintendent of schools, and third member of the committee, was unwilling to assume the authority of settling the dispute until such was conferred upon him by Alfred Newell, president of the Southeastern Fair Association. The delay that tried the patience of both contestants and spectators was ended when Mr. Newell announced an extra prize would be awarded to Mrs. Waters.

In the spelling combat Mrs. Waters stood her ground against the younger spellers until all but five had been eliminated, falling only when the proper name, "Sirius," was given her.

Twelve prizes were given in all. They were: $100 to Fred Oxford; $50 to Edna Nicholls; $15 to Roy Curtis; $14 to Kathryn Story, of Chattahoochee county; $13 each to Mrs. Waters and Irene Noel, of Oglethorpe; $12 to Hugh Campbell, of Walker; $11 to Carl Elkins, of Newton; $10 to Horace Davis, of Haralson; $9 to Eunice Exum, of Henry; $8 to Rachel Lualien, of Carroll, and $8 to Sara Thompson, of Rockdale.

Marx Will Conduct Succoth Rites Today

And, so it will, the official forecast said. But it will not be a hard rain, more likely falling in sections. The temperature for the day will range between 80 and 75, as compared with a high 73 and low 57 Monday.

No Secret Here

A simple explanation of great success.

A well known author is writing a story about A&P. "What," he has asked repeatedly, "is the secret of A&P's success? Why is it the largest grocer in the world?"

At first he was disappointed and puzzled. For he found no secret, no key to success. He had expected to solve a mystery, to discover a magic formula. He found, simply, an organization of wide-awake men hard at work.

After a few weeks' study, he has forgotten all about secrets of success, and he is no longer puzzled. But he is amazed at how much can be accomplished when great numbers of men work together with a common purpose. His will not be a new story. Real success comes only to those who believe in what they're doing—and do it.

All A&P men believe that good food should be sold at low prices—and you'd be surprised to know how simple it is when they all work together.

Final Estimate of R-101 Toll Is Placed at 47; Rigger Dies

Only Five Bodies Identified; Evidence Discloses Possibility That Woman Stowaway Was Aboard.

BEAUVAIS, France, Oct. 6.—(AP)—Official announcement was made late tonight that 46 bodies, instead of 47, as previously calculated, had been removed from the wreckage of the British dirigible R-101, setting the total of known dead in the disaster at 47.

The death list of 47 includes that of Rigger W. G. Radcliffe, one of the original eight survivors, who died early in the morning. Radcliffe had previously been reported dead but was only in a coma.

There had been a mistake in putting one of the bodies into two coffins. The body, partly consumed by fire, had fallen apart and the sections had been placed in separate coffins.

Five bodies, all of crew members, were identified today by the investigating commission of the British and the French governments into the disaster.

The members of the commission believed it unlikely that identities could ever be assigned to the rest of the charred and maimed human remains salvaged from the twisted steel framework of the dirigible.

A further attempt at identification, however, will be made in England.

With this end in view, the miscellaneous articles found close beside the different bodies have been sealed up in small boxes, on each of which has been stamped a number corresponding to that on one of the coffins.

Tonight, after officials had pried and heaved their way into the enormous bulk of the stripped and broken carcass they seemingly were no nearer to a solution of the greatest air catastrophe of recent years than when dawn yesterday first brought them a sight of the still-flaming ruin.

That there probably was one, and possibly two stowaways, one of them a woman on board the R-101, was learned from an inquiry being directed for England by Air Commander A. V. Holt. A woman's shoe was found in the debris.

Metal Pieces Found.

A further complication was the finding by peasants of metal pieces five miles from where the airship drove her nose into a hillside and exploded. These bits were picked up along the route which the R-101 had taken to her point of grounding. Experts gave them careful attention in an effort to determine their bearing upon the accident.

Engineer Harry Leach, on duty as pilot when the disaster occurred, said the craft had hit the ground once or twice before crashing. It is possible that parts of her were torn away in that manner.

Several questions were formulated in the minds of the investigators. Some were:

Did the metallic structure give way before the ship came to earth, as might be shown by the finding of the bits of metal?

Did not the ship take fire when flying over the region of Beauvais and before coming to earth? One of the riggers, S. Church, an engineer of the Royal Airship Works, said it did.

Was the R-101 simply swept to earth by a squall, such as struck the fatal spot again today and nearly took the investigators off their feet?

Mourning Day Proclaimed.

While the probe was going on Premier Tardieu today proclaimed a national day of mourning on Tuesday for the victims. The bodies, which had been laid out in hall today, were placed in the little suburb of Alloune. They were carried to the city hall.

In the great cathedral tomorrow Bishop Lesenne will say a mass in their memory, and then they will be removed to Boulogne, there to be placed on British destroyers and borne home for a solemn service of commitment in St. Paul's cathedral on Friday.

The service here will bear some of the depth of sorrow that the British people feel over the deaths of such conspicuous government figures as Lord Thomson, the popular air minister; Sir Sefton Brancker, director of civil aviation; Wing Commander R. B. B. Colmore, director of airship development, and others of similar standing in government and aviation circles.

Bellonte Predicts Fair Weather Today

Maurice Bellonte, besides being a lieutenant in the French aviation service, promises to be an excellent weather prophet in the United States—unless the forecast he made Monday evening is all wet, that is, atmospherically wet.

Talking with Doug Davis, Atlanta's most noted flier, in his suite just before the banquet, Bellonte, who speaks English very well, said that today's weather was not worrying him. "There will be a steady east wind, tomorrow," he asserted, "and we will find good flying."

And now Doug and all the Candler flier pilots are waiting to check up on him. "I'd say he is going to be wrong, but I've never flown across an ocean," said Doug, grinning.

President Washington Luis declared a 15-day national holiday.

Justice Minister Vianca Do Castello conferred with Mayor Antonio Prado in Rio de Janeiro on measures to assure a normal food supply in the capital.

In order to prevent exploitation of prices, the government requisitioned the existing stocks of food in warehouses, such as cereals, dried meat and other staples.

Rio de Janeiro received quiet, despite rumors and martial law. Theaters, cabarets, football games and other diversions remained well patronized.

President Washington Luis motored about the capital escorted only by a military aide. The beaches were well filled day and night, and the residents of the capital in the evenings motored through the city and suburbs, enjoying the cool, spring weather—for it is spring this time of year below the Equator.

An aerial bombardment of Bello Horizonte, capital of Minas Gerais state, rebel stronghold, was carried out Sunday by federal airplanes, centered dispatches from Rio de Janeiro related Monday as rebellion grew in Brazil.

The rebels claimed six provinces had joined the rebellion, covering half Brazil—a country larger than the United States. They declared they intended to march on Rio de Janeiro and oust the present regime, which they term corrupt.

The war office said messages from the disturbed areas indicated the situation was resolving in favor of the federal government. Rebels in many instances surrendered when airplanes attacked, it was said.

From this it was taken the federal offensive had already got under way to an extent greater than had been indicated by previous reports. The aerial squadrons appeared to have proved effective, and optimism was expressed that the government would get the situation well in hand shortly.

TRAGEDY ENDS TRIP OF WOMAN GOLFER

ST. ELMO, Mo., Oct. 6.—(AP)—Tragedy today had ended the honeymoon of Lee Parish, Tulsa, Okla., and his bride, the former Ann Kennedy, golf star. Parish was found from a broken neck suffered in a motor car accident and his bride was in a hospital here in a serious condition.

Their motor car went into a ditch near St. Elmo late yesterday while passing a bus. Mrs. Parish was at the wheel at the time. The bus driver said the car, an open roadster, was going too fast, ran off the concrete and then into the ditch. Mrs. Parish said they were not going more than 40 miles an hour.

Parish was thrown out on one side and his wife on the other. Physicians said Mrs. Parish may have suffered internal injuries, in addition to cuts and bruises.

Notified of the accident, a brother of Parish, a prominent Tulsa, left for St. Elmo by airplane. The body probably will be sent to Tulsa today.

Gallant French Fliers Swoop Out of Southern Sky To Find Greeting From Compatriots, Little and Big

Coste and Bellonte, trans-Atlantic heroes, here are shown at Candler field, standing in front of their faithful plane and with children of French residents of Atlanta grouped around them. The children in the group include Mireille Capdevielle, Marie Cecile Brown, Renee Marie Fletcher, Therese Fletcher, Lydia Vinour, Helene Marie Hayes, Michel Clerk, Marc Clerk and Jeanne McKee. The two fliers are the central figures in the background. Others in the group include Charles Lorrains, French consul, and Mayor I. N. Ragsdale.

With them there were some children, meticulously dressed and serious of count. They were the children of French residents of Atlanta grouped around them. The children in the group include Mireille Capdevielle, Marie Cecile Brown, Renee Marie Fletcher, Therese Fletcher, Lydia Vinour, Helene Marie Hayes, Michel Clerk, Marc Clerk and Jeanne McKee. The two fliers are the central figures in the background. Others in the group include Charles Lorrains, French consul, and Mayor I. N. Ragsdale.

They might have been American school children. They held in their hands flags, the tri-color of France and the Stars and Stripes of America. They had no special identity. A red plane appeared and circled the field, swooping down in a cloud of rushing dust. The crowd leaned forward. The word ran down the line that it was W. L. Stripling, Georgia flier and leading heavy-weight contender. He had come to greet the fliers.

And then, in the gathering darkness of the southwest, there was the shadowy outline of a plane, a skeleton plane against the dim horizon. It grew enormously, thrusting itself on the vision until it was a great, roaring plane.

There was a small cheer from the crowd. It wasn't that they were not excited or appreciative. Time has taken away too much enthusiasm from airplane fliers.

The plane swept down low and then up again, circling high with gusts of smoke from the exhaust spinning crazily in the air.

It seemed to stand on one wing and then slipped around into line and down to the field. Attendants ran out, waving arms and flags. The pilot, only his head visible, turned the ship. Hands grabbed the big wings and turned it to the runway in front of the crowd.

There was a stillness, a curious stillness, as it neared. The black poll of Coste could be seen. The shy smile of Bellonte was behind him. The crowd applauded.

And then, suddenly, as if a spark had ignited something, a staid gentleman with the little isolated group, raised his hat and screamed, "Viva La France."

The cry was caught up by the others. The heroes walked down the line to receive the cheers of the crowd. They got into cars. Police whistles shrieked. Horns sounded. Dust clouds filled the air and they were off to the city.

And then the spell was broken. The spot that was France dissolved as officials escorted them away from the massive red plane that seemed a part of France itself in its redness, its jaunty spirit that clung around it despite the massiveness of its structure.

Wilkins' Pension Petition Refused by Superior Court

City Physician's Demurrer To Reply in Suit Is Overruled Monday by Judge G. H. Howard.

Application by Dr. John G. Wilkins, former city physician, for a mandamus to compel the city pension board of trustees to meet and award him a pension has been refused by Judge G. H. Howard, of Fulton superior court, in an order overruling Wilkins' demurrer to the city's answer to the suit, it was learned Monday from papers on file with the clerk of court.

Judge Howard declined to grant the mandamus until the 'guilt or innocence of Dr. Wilkins in the indictments or in the articles of impeachment. Dr. Wilkins was city physician for 27 years.

the physician contained in state and federal indictments. Dr. Wilkins, who is under state indictments of extortion and federal narcotic law indictments, by his suit sought to compel Mayor I. N. Ragsdale, City Comptroller E. Graham West and City Treasurer Henry S. Kennedy, sitting as the board of trustees of the pension fund, to award him a pension of one-half of his monthly salary of $210.

The city officials answered the mandamus petition with the statement that the pension fund is for reward and protection of faithful employees, and that facts in the indictments showed that the physician did not discharge his duties as city physician Wilkins' demurrer to the city's answer to the suit, it was learned Monday from papers on file with the clerk of court.

Orchestras and Stage Shows Due To Return Saturday

Differences Between Musicians and Theater Interests Here Reported Adjusted.

Stage shows, music and orchestras will be restored to the programs of the Fox and the Georgia theaters beginning next Saturday, it was announced by representatives of both houses late Monday afternoon.

The announcement followed final acceptance of all terms between the Atlanta Federation of Musicians and the theater managements. It was owing to the apparent inability of the theaters and the musicians' union to agree on contract terms that the theaters adopted an all-screen policy two weeks ago.

Both Willard Patterson, district manager for Public Theaters Corporation, which operates the Georgia, and Lionel H. Keene, division manager for Loew's Inc., which operates the Fox, expressed pleasure at the amicable adjustment of the differences with the musicians.

At the Georgia, the resumption of flesh and blood entertainment means presentation in Atlanta of an enlarged policy of stage and screen entertainment, a program which was all ready to be launched at the time the difficulties with the musicians interrupted the plans two weeks ago. RKO vaudeville programs will be combined with a stage presentation policy, which will include a group of 12 "Georgia Peach" chorus girls to augment the stage offerings, a stage band with a series of guest conductors and masters of ceremonies, and an enlarged pit orchestra and regular organ programs.

At the Fox, the Fanchon and Marco stage presentations will be resumed Saturday with "Gyp-Gyp-Gyp." There also will be Mel Ruick and his "Merry Mad Musicians," and an augmented line of chorus girls. The Fox also will present organ programs at each show. The large orchestra overtures will not be offered at this theater at this time. Instead, a series of "Fitzpatrick" Music Master screen subjects will be presented. That for next week will be "Chopin," and will tell the life story Tells How to Darken Gray Hair With a Home-Made Mixture.

Jockey Williams, the well-known American actress, recently made the following statement about gray hair, and how to darken it, with a home-made mixture:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will gradually darken gray, streaked or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and 1-4 ounce of glycerine.

"These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."—(adv.)

TECH STUDENTS LEAD AS SELF SUPPORTERS

Scholars in Georgia Colleges Earned $290,000 Toward Expenses in 1928.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Students in 14 Georgia colleges earned approximately $290,000 in 1928 toward their college expenses, according to a report made public today by William John Cooper, federal commissioner of education.

The report concerns a survey made of students—boys and girls—working their way through 611 American colleges.

The Georgia School of Technology earned the largest sum, $120,000, among Georgia colleges. With a 1928 enrollment of 2,177 men, the school had 1,150 men partly paying their way by working and 200 men entirely dependent upon their own efforts. Students of the University of Georgia earned the second largest amount, $51,300. Of the 1,282 men students and 396 girl students, 513 men and 396 girls are working.

Earnings for the other Georgia colleges are: Agnes Scott College, $15,000; Bessie Tift College, $4,200; Brenau College, $8,000; Georgia State College for Women, $12,000; LaGrange College, $2,348; Mercer University, $30,000; North Georgia Agricultural College, $3,400; Oglethorpe University, $5,000; Piedmont College, no figure given; Shorter College, $400, and Wesleyan College, $1,241.

It is from the students who earn their way through college that most leaders are taken, the report asserts. "The democratic spirit is prevalent on the college campus," Dr. Cooper tells the world. "Student leaders are chosen because of popularity regardless of financial standing or self-supporting activities. Many institutions report that some of their most popular students are earning their way through school."

Consistent with its policy of laying the facts before the public, The American Tobacco Company invited Mr. Irvin S. Cobb to personally witness and to review the reports of the distinguished men who have witnessed LUCKY STRIKE's famous Toasting Process and report his findings. The following is the statement of Mr. Cobb:

Gasoline Price Hike Quiz Plan Defeated by Council

Berman Proposal Is Voted Down on Claim of Insufficient Power of City Fathers.

By a vote of 15 to 14, council of the borough of Atlanta Monday afternoon declined to set up a committee consisting of two members of council, the city attorney and the attorney-general of the state of Georgia as an inquisitorial body to investigate the recent two-cent a gallon increase in the price of gasoline. Councilman Joseph E. Berman was author of the paper.

Council declined to establish the committee just after it also had declined by a vote of 21 to 9 to table the Berman measure.

Berman's measure was seconded by Alderman J. Frank Beck, of the eighth ward.

Councilman Wiley L. Moore, chairman of council's finance committee and president of the Wofford Oil Company, of Georgia, immediately got the floor and declared he and his company would co-operate with any committee which the council established and would furnish any records or other data possible, as "we have nothing to hide."

He was followed by Alderman G. Everett Millican, of the tenth ward, southern representative of the Gulf Refining Company, who also declared his company would assist in any way possible with the inquiry, if it is authorized.

Both Moore and Millican voted against tabling the Berman paper and voted for the committee which the Berman resolution would have set up. Action of council in failing to pass the Berman measure was taken after Assistant City Attorney Courtland S. Winn, a former mayor, declared council is without jurisdiction in attempting to regulate the price of the commodity.

"This paper is only making a fool of this council," Alderman J. Frank Beck said in making the motion to table it. "I want to talk on an amendment to it to raise the price of cotton, while we are lowering the price of gasoline. There is just as much sense to my amendment."

Alderman Ed A. Gillilan declared passage of the resolution would be "futile and impotent and do no good." Alderman J. Charlie Murphy asked the city attorney's ruling.

"Failure to pass this paper is an admission of our own inadequacy to deal with this situation affecting vitally thousands of Atlantans," Berman declared. "We should at least make a gesture toward protecting the public."

Councilman Moore declared the companies are under the jurisdiction of the federal trade commission and the department of justice, and therefore under constant investigation of the federal government.

School Bus Tax Bill Passed by Council

All threat of discontinuance of bus service to various public schools by the Atlanta Coach Company, a subsidiary of the Georgia Power Company, will be removed today if Mayor I. N. Ragsdale signs an amendment to the tax ordinance which council passed Monday.

The measure of $75 for each of the buses has been charged in the past, and officials of the company notified the borough it would be forced to discontinue the service if the tax is not lifted. Council Monday afternoon adopted a measure offered by Alderman J. Charlie Murphy, of the

Commissions Denied On Paving Collections

W. E. Chabbers, auditor of the borough construction department, Monday was denied $816 as commissions collected by the Georgia Power Company for paving on which they were undercharged.

A motion by Alderman G. Everett Millican, of the tenth ward, to table the paper was passed.

According to Councilman Wiley L. Moore, chairman of the finance committee, who submitted the paper for payment at the rate of 10 per cent, Clarke Donaldson, chief of construction, was instructed to employ an auditor of the accounts of the department in order that the company could be billed.

Chabbers was selected because of his intimate knowledge of the accounts, and did the work after his regular office hours.

In attacking the proposal, Alderman Millican, Alderman Alvin Richards and Alderman H. L. Moon declared that a city employee should perform the work without additional compensation.

It is estimated that total payments, in the event the company decides to recognize all the bills against which the statute of limitations of four years has run in many cases, will aggregate $40,000.

The audit runs from 1923 until March, 1928.

Action Is Deferred On 'Radio Curfew'

Council Monday referred to the ordinance committee for a public hearing, a proposed amendment to the so-called "radio curfew" ordinance passed at the last session of council, and the measure, which council approved at its last session, remains on the books.

Councilman Joseph E. Berman, of the fourth ward, was author of the amendment, which is designed to exempt "home entertainers, public and private dance halls" from provisions of the original ordinance making it an offense to play a radio or other noise-making instrument so loudly that it can be "heard across the street or from lot to lot."

Alderman G. Everett Millican, author of the original paper, declared its provisions are not as drastic as steps just taken by New York, and defended his measure.

Councilmen Raise $45 To Aid J. W. Rountree

Council Monday afternoon sustained the veto of Mayor I. N. Ragsdale to a resolution paying former Councilman J. William Rountree $50 as his salary for August, and then raised $45 by private subscription, after Alderman Ben T. Huie had declared that Rountree needed the money.

Mayor I. N. Ragsdale, who vetoed the measure, subscribed $5; Councilman Wiley L. Moore, chairman of the finance committee, who wanted council not to "override that veto but to be careful of the taxpayers' money," headed the list for the subscription by donating $25. Councilman R. H. Johnson, of the eleventh, and Councilman Thomas C. McLaurin, of the third, added $5 and $10, respectively.

Auditorium Heating Plan May Be Changed

Revision of the heating plan at the municipal auditorium providing for junking "old boilers" there and contracting with the Georgia Power Company for steam heat from its main was recommended Monday afternoon by the auditorium committee of council. The proposal was referred to the finance committee for a report.

Traffic Proposals Passed by Council

Council Monday afternoon passed the following recommendations of the traffic committee:

Non-parking 224-236 Nelson street; from 192 Central avenue southwest to the corner; west side of Courtland street 15 feet on each side of the intersection of North Pryor place.

Stop signs at North avenue and Whiteford avenue; Oakland avenue and Hunter street; Pearce street at Albion avenue; Athens avenue at Erin street.

Council also voted to permit the state to close Capitol place between Mitchell street and Trinity avenue for purpose of constructing the new state highway building.

Report on Grady Given to Committee

Report of the Fulton County Medical Society on conditions it found in an investigation of Grady hospital was referred without comment Monday afternoon by action of council to the hospitals and charities committee, headed by Alderman G. Everett Millican, of the tenth ward.

Verner Leaves Field For Only Ramspeck

Congressman Robert Ramspeck, democratic nominee from the fifth Georgia district, Monday again had a clear field unopposed, when John E. Verner, attorney, who announced several days ago he would oppose the incumbent, stated he would not make the race.

He assured his friends of his thanks for their offered support, but stated the time between now and the election is too short to make "an educational campaign, which would be necessary for success."

Beautification Plan For City Hall Urged

Beautification of the city hall grounds was sought in council Monday when that body passed a resolution offered by the buildings and grounds committee, calling on the parks department to take such action as is necessary to make the grounds more beautiful by planting shrubbery.

Con Men Employ Old Pocketbook Trick; Get $892

The gullibility of Hattie Lee Green, negress, and recent beneficiary of a thousand-dollar life insurance policy, left her by her lamented husband, was played upon by negro confidence men Monday to the tune of $892, according to a report she made late Monday afternoon at the city detective bureau.

The $892 was all that was left after she had bought school supplies and clothing for her five children, and up until she met two elegantly dressed men Monday afternoon, it had been safely deposited in a bank. One of the men, she said, accosted her as she was about to enter a store at Whitehall and Hunter streets, calling her attention, with veiled excitement, to the second man, who, he said, had just picked up a pocketbook from the street.

Mattie pricked up her ears in earnest after he suggested the second man ought to share the contents of the purse with him and her—especially when it turned out that the purse contained $2,200. The first man told her so himself. But the money was in bills of large denomination and he urged her to divide it among the three of them unless Hattie could produce some change. It didn't take her long to think of the new bank account, or to go to it and get out the two men who went off somewhere to divide the money fairly and impartially.

But they forgot to come back with Hattie's share. They even forgot to return her change.

Supreme Court Hears Disputes of States

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—(AP)—Three contentious disputes crowded their way into the supreme court today as the tribunal began a new term in the old senate chamber where it has met for 75 years. All three contentions involved water rights. One was a dispute between two eastern states, the others were among western states.

Arizona asked the court for permission to file its complaint against the other states in the Colorado river basin and Secretary Wilbur opposing the construction of Hoover dam, and Massachusetts sought to advance the oral argument in the disputes brought by Connecticut, challenging the right of Massachusetts to take water from the Swift and Ware rivers, tributaries of the Connecticut, for use in the metropolitan district at Boston.

Connecticut filed its exceptions to the findings of the special master which favored Massachusetts. Wyoming asked the court to consider again its controversy with Colorado over the use of water from the Laramie river, contending Colorado was violating the distribution ordered by the court.

Councilman Papers Approved by Aldermen

Members of the aldermanic board Monday afternoon concurred in all papers sent to them for general council and directed that they be delivered to Mayor I. N. Ragsdale today for his sanction.

New Finance Sheet Adopted by Council

Adoption of the October finance sheet without comment was a feature of the regular semi-monthly meeting of council Monday afternoon. The sheet calls for a total expenditure of $10,642,000.

Fulton county commissioners were asked to contribute $2,500 for purchase of an X-ray for Grady.

Travelers Transfers Assistant Manager

Ralph S. Cartledge, formerly assistant manager of the Travelers Fire Insurance Company for North and South Carolina, with headquarters at Charlotte, has been transferred to Atlanta, where he will serve as assistant manager for Georgia and Alabama under the direction of Manager C. G. Snow, following the resignation of Special Agent A. T. Roberts.

Longworth Blames It All on Democrats

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—(UN)—The democrats were blamed for causing unemployment and prolonging the business depression by Speaker of the House Nicholas Longworth in a radio speech tonight. It was his first speech in this fall's national campaign for control of congress.

The tariff was defended by Longworth as a measure which reduces prices of necessities rather than raising them. He expressed a hope that the administration's alternate World War pension bill will make possible a continuation of tax reduction this fall.

His most vigorous statement was an attack on the senate for prolonging tariff debate.

"So-called debate in the senate most"

Parking of Produce Trucks On Central Ave. Banned

Council Denies Talmadge Right To Floor To Appeal for Time Extension in Farmers' Behalf.

Declining to accord the right of the council floor to Eugene Talmadge, state commissioner of agriculture, Atlanta borough council Monday afternoon passed a resolution banning parking of produce trucks on Central avenue from Rawson to Hunter streets and named a committee of five to study the situation and make recommendations regarding location of a permanent parking place.

Mr. Talmadge was to have asked an extension of time beyond November 1, the date set in the ordinance to have further parking on Central avenue and other nearby streets as a move to clear the produce trucks from that section of Atlanta.

Alderman J. Frank Beck, of the eighth ward, objected to passage of the ordinance and requested the privilege of the floor for Mr. Talmadge. Councilman James L. Wells, of the eighth, chairman of the traffic committee, which, along with the second ward delegation, brought in the report abolishing the parking on the street, objected.

Under the rules of council, the floor is accorded non-members only when there is no objection.

In addition to barring parking on Central avenue, the ordinance, if approved by Mayor I. N. Ragsdale, will make streets one block each way from Central avenue and intersecting streets in that area non-parking between the hours of 6 o'clock at night and 7 o'clock in the morning.

It was said that most of the produce trucks will begin parking on Peters street as a result of the councilmanic action.

The ordinance was offered by Dr. P. L. Moon, alderman from the second ward, and had the backing of C. H. Sims and J. W. Weaver, councilmen from the second, as well as the traffic committee of council.

In objecting to according the floor to Mr. Talmadge, Mr. Wells declared that the committee had held two public hearings and that if one side was given the right to speak the same privilege should be given the other.

Another measure providing for the establishment of the committee to work out a plan for a permanent curb was passed. Under the resolution Harry Brown, Fulton county agricultural agent; Frank Wilby, negress, and with the second ward delegation, brought in the report abolishing the parking on the street, objected.

Atlanta Is Victor in Initial Court Skirmish Over Census

Houston Denied Right To Intervene; Bureau's Power Over Legislature To Be Determined.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS. WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—(Special.)—Atlanta today won the first skirmish in its fight to force Director of the Census William M. Stewart to publish the city's population as 320,629 instead of 270,267.

Opening hearings on the writ of mandamus brought by Atlanta citizens to compel the census director to accept the high population figure in keeping with the greater Atlanta charter approved by the Georgia legislature last year, Justice Frederick L. Siddons, of the District of Columbia supreme court, denied the city of Houston, Texas, the right to intervene in the case.

To allow intervention on the part of Houston would be like "opening a Pandora's box," Justice Siddons said in denying the Texas city's request. "If that were done," he added, "any number of cities or individuals might come forward with claims to certain positions."

Briefs Are Ordered. At the same time, Justice Siddons, at the conclusion of a two-hour hearing in the case, requested opposing counsel to submit to him during the next three days briefs outlining their views on the question of whether the federal census bureau has the right to go behind the action of the legislature of a sovereign state in granting a charter to a municipality within its borders when such charter was issued in accordance with the constitutional authority of the state.

The district supreme court justice made it clear that, to his mind, the crux of the whole question lay in this point. Interrupting arguments by Assistant United States District Attorney John W. Fihelly, representing Director Stewart in the litigation, he said it seemed to be a single question of whether census officials have a right to ignore the act of the legislature, regardless of any opinion they might have of the charter itself.

The statement of the court was interpreted as favorable to Atlanta's contention in the matter. For one thing, it appears to have thrown one of the main contentions of Director Stewart that acceptance of the greater Atlanta charter would work an injustice on Houston, which claims position as the third largest city of the south on a basis of Atlanta's old charter.

Validity of Act. In short, Justice Siddons indicated a disposition to confine the issue to the validity of the act of the Georgia legislature creating the present borough system in Atlanta, an argument stressed by attorneys for the Georgia city from the start. This was the substance of his ruling in denying Houston the right to intervene. He held that Houston has no more interest in the case, legally at least, than any other city of the country, and to allow one to intervene would open the way for any number of others to do the same, if they desired.

Atlanta was represented in the hearings by City Attorney James L. Mayson, who arrived in Washington last night, and Louis Titus, Washington attorney of the law firm headed by C. Bascom Sleep, former secretary to President Coolidge. Houston's petition for intervention was presented by John C. White, of Washington, who was retained by the Texas city's Chamber of Commerce.

Objecting vigorously to the petition by Houston for permission to intervene, Mr. Titus told the court that Houston was not asking for relief in the case, but was merely seeking to become a party to the suit.

Population 320,629. Opening arguments for the city, Mr. Titus told the court the population of the municipality of Atlanta, as defined by the act of the Georgia legislature, was 320,629, but that the federal census director had arbitrarily confined the figure to 270,267, which represents only the borough of Atlanta and eliminates the other boroughs included in the city's new charter. The city, he said, has been fully organized under the new charter, and he laid before the court official minutes of the Atlanta city council to show that the requirements of the charter have been carried out.

Mr. Titus characterized as "extraordinary" the action of Director Stewart in ignoring the charter granted by the state legislature.

"It is extraordinary," he said, "that the director of the census should undertake to say that the state of Georgia has not the power to incorporate Atlanta. A complete scheme of city government is provided for in the charter, even though the taxing power is divided among the several boroughs."

Justice Siddons interrupted at this point to inquire if the state did not have the right to either grant or withhold taxing powers from a municipality.

Legislature Upheld. "Powers granted a municipality are wholly within the authority of the state legislature," Mr. Titus replied, expressing the opinion that the inquiry of the court went to the heart of the question.

Defending Director Stewart against the attack brought by Atlanta counsel, Assistant District Attorney Fihelly, in his argument, declared that no question of "state's rights" was involved in the case.

"The state legislature has the right to govern a state as it sees fit," he said, "provided it does not encroach on the rights given the federal government by the states."

Reading from the act of congress of 1902, creating the federal census bureau, he said the director of the census was required to use his own discretion in taking a national census, insisting that such discretion included the obligation to determine the correct boundaries of cities.

"The legislature," said Mr. Fihelly, "has the right to make such rules as it sees fit, but when the legislature, by particular act, is obstructing, interfering or intending to interfere with any federal law, then the court is not bound by the action of the legislature."

Important Issue. "The director's ruling in this case was based on reason, sound logic and fairness. The case is of vital importance to the director of the census and to the census bureau. It is of vital importance to every city of the United States as the status or standing of each is affected."

During the argument of the assistant district attorney, Director Stewart sat by his side, together with Frank Hall, assistant solicitor of the department of commerce.

Mr. Titus assured the court that no ulterior scheme was involved in the Greater Atlanta charter. Atlanta, he said, had outgrown the territory embraced in its old boundaries, and the legislature had simply provided for the situation and for the city's future growth. He questioned the power of the census director to say a city must be incorporated in a certain way to have its boundaries recognized in the national enumeration. If London, with its 23 boroughs, were located in the United States, it would be officially credited with a population of only 35,000, he said, if the ruling of the census director were applied.

The Washington attorney also cited the borough system of New York city, which he said was the basis for the Atlanta plan.

City Attorney Mayson plans to re-open in Washington for a few days to assist in the preparation of briefs requested by the court on the question of the census bureau's authority to go beyond the act of a state legislature.

ATLANTA FLIERS TO CAVORT TODAY

ford the usual midway features and judging of prize cattle.

The 1930 season of the Southeastern Fair, although officially opened last Saturday, reached its full swing of educational and recreational interest Monday, when thousands of school children pushed their way about the crowded Lakewood grounds, accompanied by their elders.

What will probably be one of the largest, and certainly the most curious crowd of spectators to visit the amusement park during Southeastern Fair week was witnessed Monday morning, when thousands of school children pushed their way about the crowded Lakewood grounds, accompanied by their elders.

The fairgrounds were closed for the occasion and youngsters of the city and county went forth to seek a liberal education in their own fashion. No nook of the vast exhibit buildings and grounds was left unobserved by the thorough-going youthful visitors to the fair Monday.

Spelling Bee Features

The program was featured by a spelling bee that brought the best spellers from 20 Georgia counties to pit their talent against each other and the good old blue-back book of words, and to determine Georgia's champion speller. Judge of prize cattle and midway rides, shows and novelty booths held the center of focus during the morning. In addition to the spelling bee and the extensive exhibits in the various fair structures, the afternoon program was featured by motorcycle, automobile and motor boat racing, vaudeville and band music. The night was marked by a brilliant display of pyrotechnics.

The gates to the fair grounds will open today at 8 o'clock in the morning. All exhibition buildings are scheduled to be ready for spectators at 9 o'clock, while the judging of farm products in the cattle barn will start at 9:30 a. m. Rides and shows on the midway will get underway by 10 o'clock.

The afternoon program will begin with a model airplane contest at 3 o'clock. Following that, the dropping of candy in small parachutes will provide diversion for the spectators. An "honest-to-goodness" parachute jump by Jimmy Clark and airplane stunt, beginning at 3:45 o'clock will furnish the visitors for the day with excitement and thrills. Formation flying, night flying, vaudeville attractions and band music will be other items of the day's amusements.

Of the large number of booths holding unlimited variety of exhibits for the fair visitors, the "peace booth" arranged by the Georgia committee on the Cause and Cure of War, and affiliated organizations, drew many interested spectators Monday. At this time the booth initiated its plan of presenting a distinguished person to the visitors each day. Rennie Smith, British member of parliament, was guest of honor at the booth Monday and greeted many prominent visitors to the peace booth.

Van Pelt Returns. An old acquaintance of 25 years ago was renewed Monday morning in the cattle barn at the Southeastern Fair. Hugh Van Pelt, dairy cattle judge, and J. A. Bushnell, former classmate at the Iowa State College, Ames, Iowa, met for the first time since graduating from school back in 1905.

Van Pelt was a member of the National Intercollegiate Judging team of 1905 and later was professor of animal husbandry at the institution for five years. He is now regarded as the foremost dairy cattle judge in the United States.

Bushnell is connected with the Pan-American Oil Company, of New Orleans, and is in charge of their exhibit at the Southeastern Fair.

Fulton High and Bass Junior High and Tech High shared first place honors Monday in the educational exhibits at the Southeastern Fair.

Fulton High won first place in the county competition with Russell High second.

Bass won first place among the general school exhibits, with Thomson Junior High second and Maddox Junior High third.

Tech High won first place in the high school competition with Girls' High second and Commercial High third.

Miss Charlotte Smith, supervisor of art in the city school system, is chairman of the educational exhibits.

The trans-Atlantic French fliers, Coste and Bellonte, will not be able to attend the Southeastern Fair at Lakewood Park today, aviation day, as announced. The tour party Monday night made the announcement, much-needed rest which the over-night stay in Atlanta enables them to obtain and that their tour plans will not permit their being present at any affair where admission is charged.

Fund for Tour. A fund of $50,000 was raised through the interest of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, a friend of both Coste and Bellonte, and others in New York, following Lindbergh's suggestion that the French aviators make a tour of the United States over the route he took three years ago.

Every penny of the $50,000 not expended will be handed to the French as on completion of the present tour. George Witten, tour manager, said Monday night. Before the unspent balance, which Mr. Witten said was still practically $50,000, is presented to Coste and Bellonte, it must be shown that nothing even resembling commercialism occurred on the entire tour.

Because admission is charged to the Southeastern Fair, although it was acknowledged that the fair was not for profit, the fliers' manager said they could not attend.

Junior Chamber of Commerce officers announced Monday night that as much as they regretted the slight deviation from their program, aviation day would go ahead as arranged except for the few minutes when it had been planned to have the much-sought Paris-New York birdmen driven through the fair grounds.

EAST POINT TO NAME NEW OFFICIALS TODAY

Only routine matters were considered by the borough of East Point council Monday night on the eve of the battle of ballots today, when nine candidates for various posts, including mayor, will face a jury composed of 1,850 voters in the primary.

Polling places in the election are at the following points:
First Ward—City hall; second ward, Henry Motor Company; third ward, Holland's store.

All the candidates have waged active campaigns and a large vote is expected today.

Mayor J. A. Ragdale, president of the Ragdale Motor Company, and who has served in council before being elected mayor, is opposed by Attorney D. H. Williams.

In the first ward, Dr. R. B. Callahan, incumbent, is opposed by P. H. Orr, who has served in council and also as mayor pro tem and J. D. Patterson.

In the second ward, Councilman Howard L. Carmichael, who has served three terms, is opposed by E. J. Bass.

In the third ward, Mayor Pro Tem T. E. Mathews is opposed by C. S. Wynne.

Woman Grocer Robbed Of $10 by Lone Bandit

Mrs. S. J. Wilson, operator of a small grocery store at 274 Richardson street, reported to police late Monday night that she was held up by a white man who entered the store about 11 o'clock and robbed the till of $10 in cash. The bandit was masked with a handkerchief, she said. Detective J. J. Chester and P. H. Jones investigated the robbery.

Vatican Organ Denies Royal 'Exemption'

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 6.—(P)—Osservatore Romano, Vatican newspaper, says tonight that nothing has been concluded with regard to any request for exemption in the projected marriage of King Boris, of Bulgaria, and Princess Giovanna, daughter of the Italian king and queen.

"For any one who understands Catholic doctrine," the paper says, "it is absurd to think any exemption will be granted whereby any of the children of this marriage will be authorized to be brought up in any but the Catholic church."

This is a denial of the report that the Vatican had consented to an arrangement whereby the heir to the throne, or first son, would be raised in the Bulgarian orthodox church with any other children to be brought up as Catholics.

Business Depression Fast Passing, Declares Klingman

W. W. KLINGMAN.

Equitable Life Assurance Executive Speaker at Meeting of Southern Managers at Biltmore.

One hundred southern managers of the Equitable Life Assurance Society began a two-day educational program at the Biltmore hotel Monday. Harry T. Adams, Atlanta manager, was official host. The conference was presided over by W. W. Klingman, second vice president, from the home office.

An interesting disclosure at Monday's meeting was the statement by Mr. Klingman that the greatest increased efficiency in manpower in the company's manifold offices has developed in the southern department. He also informed the managers that practically all of the company's increase in group insurance business this year has come from the south, which, he stated, has made the best showing in business gains in the United States.

"Our company, having more than $200,000,000 invested in the south, naturally is vitally interested in this section," Mr. Klingman remarked. "We have 1,500 home purchase loans in Atlanta alone, not one of which we have had to foreclose. I attribute much of this splendid showing to the personal attention of Harry Adams, our Atlanta manager, but it also shows a sound business condition locally."

Interviewed following the meeting in reference to business prospects, Mr. Klingman stated his company believes the worst of the business depression is over.

"We are in very close touch with conservative investments throughout the United States," he explained. "This gives us a graphic insight into prospective business conditions. From the fact that our company has increased its business $30,000,000 over last year, and the intimate knowledge we have of investments throughout the country, we are proceeding on the belief that business will rapidly improve. The upward trend started 45 days ago, as shown by the fact that preferred or guaranteed stocks and bonds began a decided forward movement. Business still is proceeding cautiously, but the worst times of this year have passed."

The visitors were entertained at a banquet at the Biltmore Monday night. The conference will terminate with a half day-session Tuesday, when Mr. Klingman returns to the home office.

BILBOANS RUSH TO BUY BREAD AS STRIKE LIFTS

BILBOA, Spain, Oct. 6.—(P)—The people of this strike-ridden city today swarmed the bakeries, buying bread in large quantities for hoarding against further strikes which might cause a shortage.

There was nothing to indicate today that their fears were justified.

Bakers were working and the food supply was adequate.

Although the situation growing out of riots in which one person was killed and several others were wounded over the week-end was quieter today, public tension continued. The police were hopeful that the peak of the disturbances had been passed. Most of the strikers were back at their work but extra guards were maintained throughout the city.

thousands have said— "I want the radio MARCONI praises"

—with the result that the new Radiola Super-Heterodyne is the most popular instrument in Radiola history

The whole world respects the mature judgment of Senatore Guglielmo Marconi . . . the great genius who invented radio . . . the outstanding leader of radio science for 36 years.

Impressed by his statement, "The new RCA Radiola Super-Heterodyne represents a great advance in radio reception," tens of thousands have visited Radiola dealers throughout America to see this extraordinary new instrument . . . to hear it . . . and hence to buy it.

Never had they heard such glorious reproduction . . . note for note . . . tone for tone . . . voice for voice . . . instrument for instrument . . . the actual performance of the actual broadcasting artists.

Climax of 7 Years' Research! Here is the finest home instrument that RCA, the recognized leader of the industry, the creator of practically every great development in radio, can build. It is the high spot of 7 years of Super-Heterodyne development by the world's most brilliant radio engineers.

Four times more sensitive, three times more selective than any recent model, the new Radiola was designed to fit today's broadcasting conditions. As you probably know, the government assigns each station a broadcasting channel of a standard 10-kilocycle width. The new Radiola is so expertly designed that it receives all the program in the full width of the channel—no more—no less. Hence the gorgeous tone quality, lifelike realism, and the freedom from overlapping, noise and distortion.

Greatest Value Ever! Four years ago a Radiola Super-Heterodyne console cost $370. Today, this exquisite model, with all its revolutionary improvements, comes to you for only $142.50, less Radiotrons.

See and hear this sensational new instrument. Then you will understand why Radiola factories are working overtime. Look on the dial for the famous RCA trademark—your guarantee of the ultimate in modern radio and continued pleasure for years to come.

City Pays Glowing Tribute To Coste, Bellonte at Fete

Frenchmen Who Made Perilous Atlantic Crossing Acclaimed for Feat at Banquet Here.

In the same room, arranged exactly as it was when Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was the guest of the city of Atlanta, on his tour of the nation, Georgia and Atlanta Monday night welcomed Major Dieudonne Coste and Lieutenant Maurice Bellonte.

The banquet to the famous Paris-to-New York transatlantic fliers, reminiscent of that given to Lindbergh, was held at the Ritz-Carlton, Monday night, at 8 o'clock.

Seated together, as they sat while they flew across northern Atlantic waters, Coste and Bellonte thoroughly enjoyed the gathering in their honor. At times, they spoke to the guests, who smiled and listened to the tales of the fliers' adventures.

The French fliers had an important part in the homage accorded the fliers. A large number of the Atlanta French colony were present and a special attendant was at the entrance to receive them, where they were greeted in their native tongue.

Informal in a measure which brought foreign and native Georgian close, yet with an atmosphere which accorded two brave and courageous adventurers on an unmarked path through the skies every tribute and respect.

Lauded by Gilbert. For the state of Georgia, Judge Price Gilbert, of the court of appeals, extended to the honored guests the commonwealth's welcome, in the absence of Governor E. H. Hardman, who could not attend, and he paid tribute to the aviators who have visited every nation or country in the world, as he said "except New Zealand and Australia," as ambassadors of peace and prosperity.

The airplane is bringing nations and peoples closer together, Judge Gilbert said. Friendship and good will is resulting. Tonight, you have come to our city from the far shores of France, with the peace and prosperity of the world lying in such achievements as yours.

Mayor I. N. Ragsdale, the next speaker, introduced by William B. Hartsfield, toastmaster—the mayor himself an enthusiastic plane enthusiast—told of the "deep admiration and friendship we of Atlanta and Georgia feel for these fliers."

"America is as proud of your success," the mayor declared, "as France is, and as proud as France was of Lindbergh's success. You are the envoys of good will and as such we accept you."

On Lindbergh's Trail. George Whitten, tour manager, described a number of incidents on the tour and told of its purposes, an uncommercialized visit to the route of Lindbergh's flight following his Atlantic crossing to cement further good will between two nations and to promote aviation.

"We have a fund of $50,000," he said, "for the tour. All that is not spent will be presented to Coste and Bellonte when we complete our trip. And I want to state we are spending practically nothing. Why, even bell hops won't accept tips."

Among those who arranged the tour, Mr. Whitten named Dwight W. Morrow, Colonel Lindbergh, Admiral Byrd and Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut.

Bellonte was the first flier introduced, and, speaking in English, he said, "I am glad to express our gratitude to you for the great kindness to us and for this reception tonight."

When Bellonte rose to speak, all in the banquet room stood, and again for Coste, the pilot of the "Question Mark," every person rose when he was introduced.

Coste's Response in French. Coste spoke in French, expressing his and Bellonte's appreciation for the greetings and welcome.

"I am doubly impressed tonight," Coste asserted. "I am glad to have made this tour because of the reception we have received and the fraternal attitude of the American people towards us. And tonight, I also am glad because we are nearing the end of our trip and shortening the distance home. Both of us thank you."

As the banquet ended, Henderson Hallman, governor of Georgia of the National Aeronautic Association, asked that all stand in silent tribute to those English who lost their lives in the crashing and burning of the dirigible R-101 on French soil, Sunday morning. Their faces serious, Coste and Bellonte joined in rising.

The banquet opened with the Starspangled Banner, with Coste and Bellonte being escorted to their places as they strains ended. As they took their places, Edward Clark sang the Marseillaise in French.

One of the novelties of the evening was Mr. Clerk singing "Over There" in French, and both Coste and Bellonte showed their enjoyment to the full. Other numbers in French were sung by Mrs. George McGee and Mr. McGee.

VERDICT OF SUICIDE IN KAUFFMAN DEATH

Jury Makes Decision After Reading Notes of Engineer.

Suicide by means unknown was the verdict returned Monday by a coroner's jury investigating the death of Orrin Frederick Kauffman, 53, of 8 Fairchild drive, Avondale, well-known civil engineer, who died from the effects of poison Sunday, according to police reports. The inquest was held at the establishment of Ed Bond & Condon Co.

Two notes left in Mr. Kauffman's office in the Candler building were examined by the jury after the inquest, in one of which a transcription of the poem entitled "Rock Me to Sleep, Mother"—the gradual effects of the poison could be traced. After writing the notes it was said that Mr. Kauffman stumbled into the hallway on the seventh floor of the Candler building, where he died. The body was discovered by William Reiman, a building electrician.

Friends of Mr. Kauffman said he had been brooding over domestic troubles, his wife, Mrs. Gertrude Kauffman, having filed suit for divorce on September 16, according to court records. It was also reported that he had not fully recovered from a recent illness.

Mr. Kauffman was a member of Kauffman Brothers & Son, and had been in business here for more than 20 years, having made surveys of many important developments in and around Atlanta. Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Church of the Incarnation by the Rev. H. J. Seywell. Interment will be in West View cemetery.

He is survived by his widow, two sons, Charles C. Kauffman and Benjamin C. Kauffman, of Chattanooga; five brothers, W. J. Kauffman, of New York city; George M. Kauffman, of Cleveland; Jacob Kauffman, of Columbus, Ohio; B. E. Kauffman, of Cleveland; and Jack Kauffman, of Atlanta, and a sister, Mrs. James B. Burtmore, of Cleveland.

Two Large Snakes Escape From Crate

CAMDEN, N. J., Oct. 6.—(UN)—Two boa constrictors, one 9 feet and the other 11 feet in length, were at large somewhere in a Camden suburb tonight and believed capable of dealing death by squeezing their victims.

Douglas D. W. March, of Haddon Heights, who imported the reptiles from Honduras for medical research purposes, reported the double disappearance to police.

March said the snakes were lodged in a crate and succeeded in battering their way out. A third was found in the March home.

Honeymoon Auto Strikes Pedestrian

An Atlanta couple, happily married Monday, today will be well launched and sailing merrily away on the high seas of matrimony, instead of bearing the blight of a night which might have been spent behind prison bars by the groom.

The couple, just starting on their honeymoon and oblivious to all about them, struck down J. A. Cargill, 63, of 158 West Peachtree place, as he crossed the intersection of West Peachtree and Alexander streets, talking him to Grady hospital, where a lacerated scalp and leg injuries were treated.

"It was all my fault," he said, upon learning the couple were prospective honeymooners. "I stepped into the path of your car. You were folks forget it and run along, now, on your trip."

George I. Thompson Fights Ouster Move

The petition of George I. Thompson for an injunction to protect his tenancy of the store at the Forsyth and Luckie street corner of the Metropolitan building's ground floor Monday was denied by Judge G. H. Howard, of Fulton superior court.

Thompson asked for a restraining order to prevent his being ousted from the store; and to prevent the property owners from instituting legal proceedings to that end. His suit named as defendants Mrs. May Inman Gray, Sig Samuel, the Metropolitan Company and the Southern States Life Insurance Company. Thompson said in his petition that he sub-leased the store for five years, ending June 30, 1935, and that he remodeled the building and has been notified by Mrs. Gray to vacate the premises by September 15, as he believes, Mrs. Gray and the Southern States Life Insurance Company desire to remodel the building and wish to have the premises vacated by all tenants.

Thompson said he had been in business here for more than 20 years, having made surveys of many important developments in and around Atlanta. Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Church of the Incarnation by the Rev. H. J. Seywell. Interment will be in West View cemetery.

He is survived by his widow, two sons, Charles C. Kauffman and Benjamin C. Kauffman, of Chattanooga; five brothers, W. J. Kauffman, of New York city; George M. Kauffman, of Cleveland; Jacob Kauffman, of Columbus, Ohio; B. E. Kauffman, of Cleveland; and Jack Kauffman, of Atlanta, and a sister, Mrs. James B. Burtmore, of Cleveland.

Rich Italian Sells 'All' To Settle Huge Debt

TURIN, Italy, Oct. 6.—(AP)—Richard Guaglio, one of Italy's biggest financiers, has sold his rich art collection, an eighteenth century palace, racing stable and the Metropolitan Bank of Italy, and other institutions, aggregating 500,000,000 lire (about $26,000,000).

The Bank of Italy, another creditor, liquidated him. Premier Mussolini is believed to have referred to Guaglio in a speech last week in which he bitterly attacked speculators.

Deficit Is Slashed By Douglas School

South Georgia State college, at Douglas, a junior college of which J. M. Thrash is president, lived within its income during 1929-30 and paid $6,257.49 on a deficit incurred through the building of a new dining hall, according to an audit of the institution's books filed with Governor Hardman Monday by State Auditor Tom Wisdom.

The per capita expenditures for 183 students at the college were $247.25. Total receipts were $50,362, of which the state appropriated $28,125 and the federal government $1,350 for vocational instruction.

Tennessean Faces Embezzling Charge

MAYNARDVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 6.—(AP)—John B. Sharp, former trustee of Union county, today faced charges of embezzlement, preferred in warrants sworn out by Brown Sharp and E. L. Monroe, two of his bondsmen. He made bond of $2,500. Meanwhile, the county court discussed the state auditor's report showing Sharp to be $41,078.87 short in his accounts.

Endowment Group Attacked in Suit

Charging that certain contracts of the Ponce de Leon Marriage Endowment Association are gaming contracts, are in restraint of marriage, and are fraudulent and illegal, Charles A. Azicola and Miss Mable Garner Monday petitioned Fulton superior court for an order restraining the association from collecting dues or assessments from the plaintiffs.

The petitioners ask for a receiver for the association, and seek return of assessments amounting to $85 each. Judge G. H. Howard granted a temporary restraining order and set the case for Saturday. The temporary order enjoins the defendant from changing or destroying its books and other records. The plaintiffs expressed belief that no effort has been made by the defendant to build up a reserve fund, and that funds assessed for this purpose have been otherwise expended. The alleged illegal nature of the contracts was not apparent to the plaintiffs at the time of issuance, the petition alleges. Attorney J. E. Jackson represents the plaintiffs.

The petition of George I. Thompson for an injunction to protect his tenancy of the store at the Forsyth and Luckie street corner of the Metropolitan building's ground floor Monday was denied by Judge G. H. Howard, of Fulton superior court.

Ivins Granted New Trial in Slaying

B. M. Ivins, convicted of voluntary manslaughter, Monday was granted a new trial by Judge Virgil B. Moore, of Fulton superior court. Ivins was under a 10-to-10-year sentence as a result of his first trial. He is at liberty under $7,500 supercedens bond.

Ivins was indicted on a charge of murder. The true bill alleged he killed Tom Deniras, cafe proprietor, who was better known as Tom Adams. Deniras was killed in May of this year. Ivins is represented by Hewlett & Dennis.

BLACK SHIRT CHARTER BATTLE SLATED TODAY

Boykin To Oppose Issuance of Papers on Grand Jury Charges.

Clash over the request of Holt J. Gwiner for a charter as the American Fascisti, Order of Black Shirts, is scheduled for this morning in Judge G. H. Howard's division of Fulton superior court. The case was called Monday and postponed until today.

Gwiner and his organization will be opposed by Solicitor-General John A. Boykin, representing the Fulton county grand jury, and the law firm of Murrell & Murrell, representing the American Fascisti as incorporated in Orlando, Orange county, Florida.

A subpoena duces tecum for the Gwiner organization's records was issued Monday by the solicitor-general. The files were brought to the courtroom, but, owing to postponement of the case for the day, were not used.

The grand jury recently adopted resolutions protesting against issuance of a Fulton county charter to the Gwiner organization. The jury charged that the order is inimical to public interests, and alleged that employers of negro labor have met with attempts at intimidation. At the grand jury's request, Mr. Boykin undertook to block issuance of the charter. Mayor Ragsdale recently refused the order a permit parade, at the instance of the grand jury.

An intervention will be filed this morning by Henry J. Norton, president; Raymond V. Bergen, first vice president; Thomas B. West, second vice president; J. O. Wood, secretary, and James R. Venable, treasurer, of the organization incorporated in Orange county. The intervenors charge, in a petition prepared by Murrell & Murrell, that the Gwiner order is a colorable imitation of the Florida incorporated organization, and that the Norton-Wood-Venable order existed before the Gwiner order.

A number of Georgia cities have refused meeting places and parades to the Black Shirts. The application for a charter filed by Gwiner declares the organization is one supporting white supremacy and opposed to communism.

Institute of Credit Opens Year Tonight

The annual organization meeting of the Atlanta chapter, National Institute of Credit, will be held at 6:30 o'clock tonight in Room 305, Chamber of Commerce building, it was announced Monday by F. H. Snel, secretary of the Atlanta Association of Credit Men, the sponsoring organization.

'Standing Peachtree' Marker Is Sought

Petition of Mrs. Eli A. Thomas, regent of the Atlanta chapter, D. A. R., and Miss Virginia Hardin, chairman of the committee on marking historic spots, asking the borough to provide a natural boulder on waterworks property to mark the Indian village of "Standing Peachtree," near the Chattahoochee river, was referred Monday by council to the water committee of council for a recommendation. The petition set out that if the

MURDER INDICTMENT SEEN FOR MRS. COBB

Accused Woman Maintains Silence About Killing of Sister-in-Law.

The indictment of Mrs. Betty Cobb, 48, on a first degree murder charge growing out of the shooting Saturday night, just after Mrs. R. E. Logan, 43, of Griffin, will be asked to convene in semi-weekly session this morning, it was announced Monday at the office of Solicitor-General John A. Boykin.

Mrs. Cobb, who is said to have told policewomen that the fatal shooting of the latter's interference in the affairs of Mrs. Cobb and her husband, W. O. Cobb, has since refused to talk about the case.

The shooting occurred in the rear of 829 Edgewood avenue Saturday night, just after Mrs. Logan had alighted from a motor car and approached Mrs. Cobb.

According to Cobb, he and his wife have been separated for some time. He said Monday he would give his wife all of the assistance possible. Mrs. Cobb had not retained an attorney, to represent her Monday, friends saying she was without funds to do so.

GRiffin, Ga., Oct. 6.—(AP)—Services for Mrs. R. E. Logan, 43, who was shot and killed in Atlanta Saturday, were held here today.

Mrs. Betty Cobb, estranged wife of Mrs. Logan's brother, is held on a technical charge of suspicion for the slaying in Fulton tower at Atlanta. B. E. Logan, husband of the slain woman, is near a nervous breakdown from the tragedy and today was unable to discuss it. He is slightly deaf, and said here that he did not hear a conversation between his wife and Mrs. Cobb, which was said to have led to the shooting.

boulder is provided, the chapter will set a location in it telling of its historic value.

The location is in land lot 231, of the 17th district. The petition also recites that Fort Peachtree stood in the angle formed by the confluence of Peachtree creek and the Chattahoochee river.

A BITING REMARK...

WE INHERITED THIS EXPRESSION FROM A RATHER TRAGIC GRECIAN INCIDENT... NEARCHOS, THE GREEK TYRANT, ORDERED ZENO TO BE POUNDED TO DEATH IN A MORTAR... WHEN THE PHILOSOPHER WAS NEARLY BRUISED TO DEATH HE CALLED FOR NEARCHOS, AND, AS THE TYRANT BENT CLOSE TO CATCH THE LAST WORDS OF THE DYING MAN, ZENO BIT HIS EAR OFF.

Atlanta Bids You WELCOME
Gallant Captain Coste and Brave Bellonte

Atlanta is proud to count you hers for a day... Captain Coste, of the fearless heart, and Maurice Bellonte, of the steady hand.

Our thoughts were with you over the broad Atlantic as you battled fog and dark and death. When your tired plane swooped down to a perfect landing after completing the first westward non-stop flight from Paris to New York... in 37 hours and 18 minutes... ours was one of the first throats to cheer you—one of the first to offer up a prayer for your safe arrival.

For so long as men shall live and dream... as long as raw red Courage can quicken the blood of mortal man... just so long will your perilous feat be deathlessly inscribed across the pages of time. And Atlanta lifts her voice with the voice of the world crying...

The MURDER at the VICARAGE

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

CHAPTER XII

"Yes," "I'm going to ask you a few questions. You've already been told that you needn't answer them unless you choose. Your solicitor—"

Lawrence interrupted.

"I've nothing to hide. I killed Protheroe."

"Ah! well," Melchett snorted. "How did you happen to have a pistol with you?"

Lawrence hesitated.

"It was in my pocket."

"Why did you put the clock back?"

"The clock?"

"Yes."

"I always take it."

"He had hesitated again before answering, and I was absolutely sure that he was not speaking the truth."

"Why did you put the clock back?"

"The clock?"

"Yes."

"I always take it."

"He had hesitated again before answering, and I was absolutely sure that he was not speaking the truth."

"Why did you put the clock back?"

"The clock?"

"Yes."

"I always take it."

"Oh! that's—yes, I altered it," Haydock spoke suddenly.

"Where did you shoot Colonel Protheroe?"

"In the study at the vicarage."

"I mean in what part of the body?"

"Oh!—I—through the head, I think, yes, through the head."

"Aren't you sure?"

"Since you know, I can't see why it is necessary to ask me."

"It was a feeble kind of bluster. There was some emotion outside. A constable without a helmet brought in a note."

"For the vicar. It says very urgent on it."

"I tore it open and read."

"Please—please—come to me. I don't know what to do. It is all too awful. I want to tell some one. Please come immediately, and bring any one you like with you. Anne Protheroe."

I gave Melchett a meaning glance. He took the hint. We went out together. Glancing over my shoulder, I had a glimpse of Lawrence Redding's face. His eyes were riveted on the paper in my hand and he had hardly ever seen such a terrible look of anguish and despair in any human being's face.

I remembered Anne Protheroe sitting on my sofa and saying:

"I'm a desperate woman, and my heart grew heavy within me. I saw now the possible reason for Lawrence Redding's heroic self-sacrifice. There was some reason to think he shot Protheroe earlier than he says. Get on to it, will you?"

He turned to me and without a word I handed him Anne Protheroe's letter. He read it and stared at his lips in astonishment. Then he looked at me inquiringly.

"Is this what you were hinting at this morning?"

"Yes. I was not sure then if it was my duty to speak. I am quite sure now." And I told him of what I had seen that night in the studio.

The colonel had a few words with the inspector and then we set off for Old Hall. Dr. Haydock came with us.

A very correct butler opened the door, with just the right amount of gloom in his bearing.

"Good morning," said Melchett. "Will you ask Mrs. Protheroe to tell her we are here and would like to see her, and then return here and answer a few questions."

The butler hurried away and presently returned with the news that he had dispatched the message.

"Now, let's hear something about yesterday," said Colonel Melchett. "Your master was in to lunch?"

"Yes, sir."

"And in his usual spirits?"

"As far as I could see, yes, sir."

"What happened after that?"

"After luncheon, Mrs. Protheroe went to lie down and the colonel went to his study. Miss Lettice went out to a tennis party in the two-seater. Colonel and Mrs. Protheroe had tea at four-thirty, in the drawing room. The car was ordered for five-thirty to take them to the village. Immediately after they had left Mr. Clement rung up"—he bowed to me—"I told him they had started."

"Hm," said Colonel Melchett. "When was Mr. Redding last here?"

"On Tuesday afternoon, sir."

"I understand that there was a disagreement between them?"

"I believe so, sir. The colonel gave me orders that Mr. Redding was not to be admitted in future."

"Did you overhear the quarrel at all?" asked Colonel Melchett bluntly.

"Colonel Protheroe, sir, had a very loud voice, especially when it was raised in anger. I understood, sir, that it had to do with a portrait Mr. Redding had been painting—a portrait of Miss Lettice."

Melchett grunted.

"Did you see Mr. Redding when he left?"

"Yes, sir, I let him out."

"Did he seem angry?"

"No, sir, if I may say so, he seemed rather amused."

"Ah! He didn't come to the house yesterday?"

"No, sir."

"Any one else come?"

"Not yesterday, sir."

"Well, the day before?"

"Mr. Dennis Clement came in the afternoon. And Dr. Stone was here for some time. And there was a lady in the evening."

"A lady?" Melchett was surprised.

"Who was she?"

"The butler couldn't remember her name. It was a lady he had not seen before. Yes, she had given her name and when he told her that the family were at dinner she had said that she would wait. So he had shown her into the little morning room."

She had asked for Colonel Protheroe, not Mrs. Protheroe. He had told the colonel and the colonel had gone to the morning room directly dinner was over.

How long had the lady stayed? He thought about half an hour. The colonel himself had let her out. Ah! yes, he remembered her name now. The lady had been a Mrs. Lestranger.

"This was a surprise."

"Curious," said Melchett. "Really very curious."

But we pursued that matter no further, for at that moment a messenger came that Mrs. Protheroe would see us.

Anne was in bed. Her face was pale and her eyes were very bright. There was a look of grim determination. She spoke to me.

"Thank you for coming so promptly," she said. "I see you've understood what I meant by bringing any one you liked with you. It's best to get it over quickly, isn't it?" She gave a queer half pathetic little smile. "I suppose you're the person I ought to say it to, Colonel Melchett. You see, it was I who killed my husband."

Colonel Melchett said gently: "My dear Mrs. Protheroe, I suppose I've said it rather bluntly, but I never can get into hysterics over anything. I've hated him for a long time and yesterday I shot him."

She lay back on the pillows and closed her eyes.

"That's all, I suppose you'll arrest me and take me away. I'll get up and dress as soon as I can. At the moment I am feeling rather sick."

"Are you aware, Mrs. Protheroe, that Mr. Lawrence Redding has already accused himself of committing the crime?"

Anne opened her eyes and nodded brightly.

"I know. Silly boy. He's very much in love with me, you know. It was frightfully noble of him—but very silly."

"How did he know?"

"She hesitated."

"Did you tell him?"

Still she hesitated. Then at last she seemed to make up her mind.

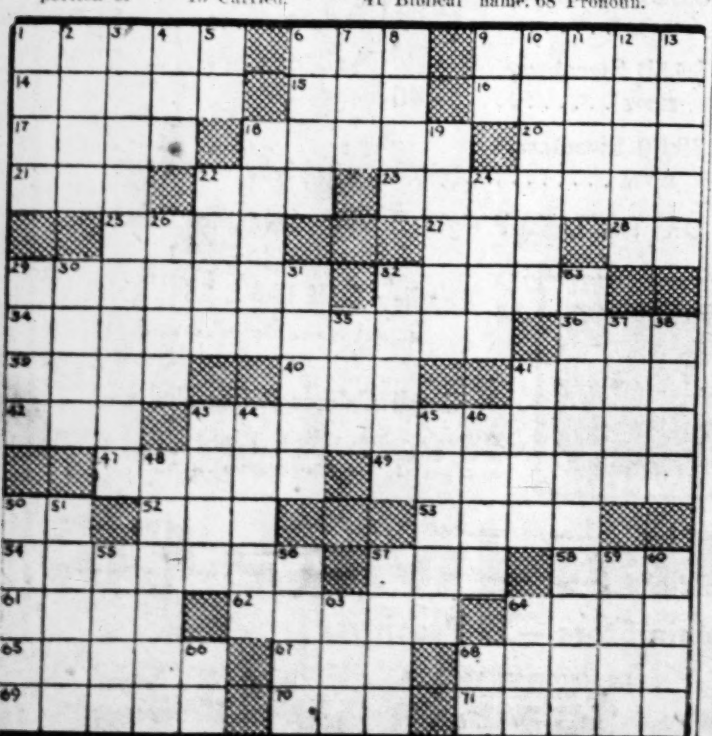

"Yes—I told him."

She twitched her shoulders with a movement of irritation.

DEBUTANTES SET NOVEMBER 17 FOR FASHION SHOW

Debbies To Participate In Sports Day at Fair

Monday, November 17, is the tentative date set by members of the 1930-31 Debutante Club for the fashion show which this group of popular Atlanta belles will give at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel, this decision being made at the meeting held yesterday afternoon at the home of the treasurer, Miss Margaret Arnold, on Peachtree street. The sponsoring of a fashion show is an annual custom of every season's buds, and is numbered among the most brilliant events given during the winter. The newest and smartest clothes will be worn by the debbies including sports, afternoon, dinner and evening costumes as well as hats, shoes and other accessories. The proceeds from the show will be used toward some worthy charity which the Debutante Club will sponsor.

Hear Speakers.

At yesterday's meeting Mrs. Ewell Gay told the members of the work done at the Cornelia Moore Day Nursery of the Sheltering Arms and of the needs of the children who are cared for by the nursery during their mothers' absence in the near-by industrial mills. Mesdames Winfield Jones and James Stanley Moore spoke in behalf of the Atlanta Child's Home, telling of the worthiness of this home and appealing to the members to assist in its support. It was voted by members to defer the selection of the charity for which they would work until various members could visit the institutions under consideration.

To Drive Sport Cars.

Plans were made for the part the debutantes will take in the Sports Day celebration at the Southeastern Fair tomorrow. They will ride in the parade beginning at Baker street, ending at the fair, each debbie driving the latest model in sport motor cars, and each wearing a smart sports costume. This group of attractive Atlanta belles will receive enthusiastic applause from the hundreds of Atlantans who will witness the parade and will vie in popularity with the galaxy of champions from all lines of sports participating in the program, including Ed Hamm, world's champion broad jumper, of Georgia Tech; W. L. Strickland, heavyweight champion contender of the world, and Mrs. Walter P. Andrews, woman trapshoot-champion.

The debutantes will also take a prominent part in the sale of forget-me-nots October 15 and the sale of poppies on Poppy Day, plans for both these days being discussed at yesterday's meeting. An anticipated visit to the Tate Mountain Estates by this season's debutantes was discussed at yesterday's meeting, the date of the visit to be announced later. Miss Hannah Sterne, president of the club, presided over yesterday's meeting, which was followed by a brief social hour.

Parties for Debs.

Mrs. Paul Seydel will entertain at tea Wednesday, October 15, at the Bockhaven Country Club in honor of Miss Eugenia Bridges, one of the charming members of the Debutante Club of 1930-1931.

Mrs. H. C. Moore gives a seated tea Tuesday, October 14, at the Piedmont Driving Club in honor of Miss Frances Barnwell, one of the charming members of the debutante coterie. In compliment to one of the debutantes of 1930-31 will be the party given by John de Sausure at the Piedmont Driving Club Saturday, October 25, in honor of his cousin, Miss Sarah de Sausure. The event will follow the Tech-Tulane game at Grant field and invited to meet Miss de Sausure will be the members of the Debutante Club and 100 other guests.

Military Order To Give Dinner.

Military Order of the Tin Hats holds its informal monthly dinner at the Little Tavern, Wednesday, October 8, at 6 o'clock, and a plate charge to members and guests will be 35 cents. All soldiers, ex-soldiers and veterans are invited to attend these meetings, which will be held each month on the second Wednesday at this same hour.

SHERLOCK HOLMES—The Musgrave Ritual. By SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE

The Last of Brunton.

"No man could have recognized the features of the body as he dragged from beside the chest," Holmes continued, "but his height, his dress, his hair were all sufficient to show my client, when we had drawn the body up, that it was indeed his missing butler."

"When Brunton's body had been carried from the cellar, we found ourselves still confronted with a problem almost as formidable as that with which we started. The butler had been dead some days, but there was no wound or bruise upon his person to show how he had met his dreadful end."

"I sat down on a log in a corner and thought the whole matter over carefully. I had reckoned upon solving the mystery once I had found the place referred to in the Rhod. But now I was there, and apparently as far as ever from success, though I had penetrated the secret of what treasure it was Brunton sought. I had thrown a light on the butler's fate, but how did he meet that fate?"

"Rachel Howells, the housemaid, had fled from the grounds on the morning of her strange disappearance. I was convinced, and never would be heard of more. Nor was she. We never succeeded in tracing her. What part had she played in the tragedy?"

ARE YOU BOTHERED WITH SKIN CONGESTION? END IT THIS WAY

Mirror in hand, "take stock" of your complexion-beauty!

When your complexion is fine-textured and smooth as it should be, you cannot see the millions of tiny pores that breathe health and beauty for your skin!

But you know they are there when they become congested, for blackheads, whiteheads, coarse pores, mudiness, sallowness, and even pimples are the tragic result.

That's when your skin needs Plough's Cleansing Cream, the sure, effective, deep pore-cleansing method of overcoming skin-congestion!

Quickly this light, non-absorbable cream liquefies... hurries deep down beneath the surface where soap and water cannot reach... sweeps from the pores every trace of dust, grime and make-up! Then... your skin breathes freely again... your pores contract to normal size... and your complexion responds by glowing with youthful freshness and charm, and by becoming clearer, smoother, lovelier every day as you continue this deep pore-cleansing.

The 50c size of Plough's Cleansing Cream contains more than twice as much as the 30c size, and the 75c size is the most economical to buy. When you choose Plough's Cleansing Cream you shop wisely and well. For you are assured the finest quality possible at prices in keeping with the modern trend to economy.

◆Skin Congestion denotes the presence of a hardened substance in the pores caused by the accumulation of dust, grime and make-up.

Soap Sculpture Exhibition Opens Today at High Museum of Art

Art is finding expression in no more pretentious a medium than the humble cake of soap. Children, grown-ups, artists and amateurs throughout the country are using this means of translating their idea of beauty into concrete form.

Evidence of this will be seen in the exhibition of soap sculpture which goes on view to the public today at the High Museum of Art, 1202 Peachtree street, of which Lewis P. Skidmore is director. The show includes prize-winning pieces of sculpture entered in the national contest recently conducted by the National Small Sculpture Society. Contests have been conducted representing every section of the United States, Porto Rico, Hawaii, Canada and six foreign countries. Lorado Taft, Charles Dana Gibson, Harriet Frishmuth, Gutzon Borglum and several museum directors.

All of the spirit and fire of a thoroughbred is to be seen in the soap sculptured model of a horse by Lucia Emily Dodd, 14, of Malone, N. Y., which was awarded first prize in the national junior soap sculpture prize competition. The breadth of handling and fineness of conception make the model an inspiration and an incentive to workers in this pleasing, soft, white medium. It is one of the outstanding pieces being shown at the museum. The exhibition will be on view through November 1.

The pencil sketches of John A. Brandon, of Sacramento, Cal., well-known lithograph designer and painter, are being shown in the auditorium gallery of the museum. The collection is marked by a grasp of third dimension, atmospheric values, and shows unusual power and sincerity. Historical scenes have been clearly and truly portrayed in this interesting group of pencil studies which will remain on view through October 15.

Sales Volume Drops Below Recent Liquidation Figures

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—(AP)—Slow but steady pressure pushed stocks downward today, virtually completing the erosion of last week's rally and leaving the average for 90 issues only one-fifth of a point above the year's low set on September 30. Sales were well below the volume reached in the recent liquidation, however, totaling 1,152,408 shares.

The decline was accompanied by considerable unsettlement in other markets. Wheat closed fractionally higher on a rebound from early losses, but the market was unsettled by a 1-1/2 to 2 cents and corn made a substantially larger recovery after similar declines. Bonds lost their vigor as the Brazilian situation brought a distinct weakness to coffee futures as well as to the republic's bonds and obligations of other Latin American countries. Cotton lost 4 to 10 points.

The selling on the stock market was particularly disturbing to those who had hoped that last week's rally was the beginning of a recovery. In general, the favorites gave ground most readily today under a drizzle rather than a flood of offerings, which indicated that real liquidation was again in progress and that the bear factor was playing a relatively minor role.

Discouragement over the failure of last week's advance to hold for more than a day was the most frequently heard explanation for the market's action. Holders of stocks who had weathered the long decline terminating in last Wednesday's recovery were said to have been disappointed by the prompt reaction from rally, and some selling by investment trusts was also reported.

Saturday's weakness in American Telephone and other so-called "blue chip" shares seemed to have had an unfavorable effect, for it was in stocks of this grade that some of the day's major losses were suffered. Virtually all of the investment trusts made new 1930 lows; prominent utilities and industrials slumped with only slight exceptions at rallies.

Many prominent shares were off 2 to 6 points and more on the day, which meant that new lows were being made for the third downward movement were numerous. There was virtually no improvement on covering at the close. United States Steel, breaking 152 1/2 against its 1930 low of 151 1/2, and American Telephone, which touched 200 1/2, only 3-8 from the year's minimum, closed slightly above the bottom for 3 point net losses, and such, on the whole, was the performance of other popular investment shares.

News Good and Bad.

Aside from the disturbances in Brazil, the day's news afforded little that was either alarming or encouraging. Woolworth's September sales were up a fraction in comparison with the same month a year ago, but the funds found their way back rather than into industry and Wall Street expected a repetition of this movement.

There were 5 point net declines in American Can, North American, Du Pont and Case. Westinghouse Electric, Canadian Pacific and American Foreign Power lost 6, American Water Works nearly 9 and Allied Chemical 18. Radio made a new low for the year, off more than 2 points.

General Electric, General Motors, Montgomery Ward, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Johns-Manville, Consolidated Gas and Baltimore & Ohio were off 1 1/2 to 2, while New York Central, Union Pacific, Gillette, Bethlehem Steel, Columbia Gas, Standard Gas and Seagraves closed 3 to 4 lower. Atchafalaya's loss was nearly 5.

Foreign exchanges eased. As was to be expected, the Brazilian milreis broke sharply. German marks were quoted at their year's low. The recovery in wheat, which closed about 1-3 cent higher, was based on an unexpected decline in the visible supply. Corn rallied 1-3/4 net, likewise reflecting a reduction in supply as well as forecasts of unfavorable weather.

Roberts won two of the automobile races and then rode his motor to victory in one of the motorcycle events. Smith won the first place and a second in the speed boat race.

In the automobile racing events, Jack Arzo won the first race, a three-mile, in 3 minutes and 5 seconds. Roberts was second and Woody Arzo was third. Roberts won the second race, with Wesley second and Jack third. Roberts then won a special match race with Jack Arzo, a two-mile event in 1 minute and 58 seconds.

Roberts won the first motorcycle race of the afternoon and was third in the other. Tex Richards, former national champion, won second in the first two events, and captured the third. Bill Miller was third in the third, while Clarence Pearce was third in the third.

McMillin Wedding Surprises Friends

GALLATIN, Mo., Oct. 6.—(P)—A. N. ("Bo") McMillin, of Centre college football fame, was a bridegroom today. Mrs. McMillin was, until last night, Miss Kathryn Gilliland, of Gallatin, a former student at the Kansas Agricultural Experiment station, where "Bo" now is head football coach.

The wedding, which came as a surprise to all save relatives of the couple and a few intimate friends, was performed at St. James' church, Liberty, Missouri.

McMillin planned to direct the Kansas Aggies in practice today as usual. He and his bride left immediately after the ceremony for Manhattan.

Tulane Challenges Irish Travel Mark

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 6.—(P)—Tulane's Green Wave is threatening Notre Dame's record as a traveling football team. Tulane played North-western at Evanston, Ill., last Saturday and this week the Greenies go to Dallas, Texas, to resume a series with Texas A. & M., that started in 1929.

By Ed Samfarth

This has been a hard season on all of us Cardinal fans. Oh, the punishment we have taken! Barber shop row yesterday morning buzzed with kind words for the St. Louis Cardinals and predictions that old Gabby Street would drive his boys along to that world's championship yet.

Atlanta was peppered with Cardinal fans last week. Of course, the Athletics looked good with that string of heavy artillery and Grove and Earnshaw under a full head of steam, BUT "those Cards" were hot. Those Cards were just going to wade in and keep up the lick they had been hitting in the final stretches of the national league race.

One of these, the conductor of this column, was whom. He generously whispered the information to one and all that the St. Louis team looked pretty good for the series—lots of good pitchers, a great shortstop, a great second baseman and all that.

Then came the first two games—the Athletics landed on the Cardinals like a safe dropped from the seventh floor—and all of us St. Louis well-wishers subsided with a whistling sound as of a punctured bicycle tire. All stayed mighty quiet until Sunday night. Then the lid came off as the Street crowd squared the set.

Ho hum, we knew it all the time!

Then yesterday with Cochrane on first Jim Foxx hit a home run on the first ball pitched, the Athletics went up in the series 3 to 2 games and the Cardinal fans had to lay low again.

This constant rising up and sitting down is worse than having an aisle seat at a picture show.

GEORGIA'S PROSPECT.
If Georgia can beat Yale this time it will make the intersectional campaign notable in southern football history regardless of the outcome of later contests.

Vanderbilt's victory over Minnesota should heighten all southern elevens that go north for games. A Georgia victory in the Bowl—another one—would create a measure of poise in southerners who ride away later.

Georgia will have a tougher problem than Vanderbilt had. Minnesota probably did not take the Commodore sophomores very seriously. Yale will make no such mistakes in the case of Georgia. When the young men from Athens walk through the tunnel they will find the Yale Bulldog growling, teeth bared, ready to meet the foe that a year ago beat him down south.

BY THE WAY.
A correspondent sends a cartoon clipped from a New York newspaper showing Bobby Jones at the top of the ladder of golf and pencils on the margin:

"I should think that after all Bobby Jones has done, the city of Atlanta, or whoever is responsible, would finish the golf course named for him and make it the finest in the world."

HE HAS A SPOON.
"Silly Sally, the pride of Tenth and Peachtree street, thinks that they'll start giving Bobby Jones saucers now that he's won all the cups!"
—The Count of North Atlanta.

FOR YOUR SOCK.
R. J. Spiller, the Squire of Ponce de Leon, reports he is recovering slowly from a mild illness and that he is approaching bird shooting form.

Meanwhile he assures us of a Christmas present—a ball club.

"Johnny Dobbs and I already are at work," he says, "and we will have our ball club put together by Christmas. Then there will be no shopping to do in the spring when the market is tight and nothing but remnants left."

Stribling Flies Here To Greet Air Heroes
Georgian Considers Joining Regular Army Air Corps—Local Fight Date Changed.

By Ralph McGill.
W. L. (Young) Stribling landed at the Candler field airport Monday afternoon a few minutes ahead of the famous French airmen, Coste and Bellonte.

He taxied up and came to a stop. He was in shirt sleeves. In the space for passengers in his Travelair plane there was a motorcycle. He had no parachute.

"That motorcycle is for use if he has to walk back home," chuckled Pa, who was on hand to greet his son and the French fliers.

Stribling, who is to fight in Atlanta next month, evidenced great interest in the big red biplane which the French fliers arrived in. He and "Pa" inspected it carefully.

Stribling was impressed by the fact that the fliers had started with a ship which has old-fashioned wheels.

"WAGON WHEELS."
"Their wheels aren't stream-lined," said Stribling. "They are what we call wagon wheels. Had they been stream-lined they could have got another half mile more per hour."

"I'd like to know if they crossed the Atlantic with that wooden propeller," mused the world's best heavyweight and a great pilot himself, "but I don't know how to ask."

The Georgia heavyweight flew to Atlanta from Montgomery in an hour and 12 minutes. "Had some head winds," he said apologetically.

MAY JOIN CORPS.
Stribling revealed that he was seriously considering taking a commission in the regular army flying corps. The air career appeals to him greatly. If he finds that it will be possible for him to obtain leaves of absence for training and fighting he is likely to go into the regular army corps. He is now a lieutenant in the reserve corps, the only fighter in the world with a pilot's license.

"Pa" Stribling is an enthusiastic passenger. The Striblings have the rest of the fight game absolutely stopped, purple-eyed and flabbergasted. The Striblings.

BULLDOGS OPEN WORK FOR YALE WITH SKIRMISH

Varsity Takes Dummy Drill Against Eli Plays as Starter.

ATHENS, Oct. 6.—The Bulldogs of Georgia began their preparations this afternoon for their meeting with the Bulldogs of Yale in the bowl in New Haven Saturday.

That far-away look vanished as the Bulldogs started their heavy work by getting on defense against the Red Devils, playing at being "Yale." The work was limited to an hour's dummy scrimmage against the 33 Bulldogs who next Saturday will go into the bowl against the big Blue Bulldogs themselves.

For the first time since the Red Devils began running their plays they seemed to get the signals down right. Led by Sam Brown, who is essaying the role of Albie Booth, the Devils, dressed in the blue jerseys of Yale, uncocked an array of intricate plays as they laid the foundations for the real scrimmages that will follow.

Coch Harty Mehr plans two hard scrimmages for his squad tomorrow and Wednesday, after which the Bulldogs will leave for New Haven with nothing but a little light exercise to occupy their minds—until they meet Yale Saturday afternoon.

If the punt formation scrimmage against the freshman team today is any indication of what the Bulldogs intend to do Saturday afternoon, little Albie Booth may not get a chance to return Georgia punts for long runs.

The freshmen, a good defensive team, could not hold the varsity after Spurgeon Chandler, Sully Sullivan or John Davidson had booted the ball down the field to the yearling safety man.

The Bulldogs punted for half an hour with the ever-menacing freshman line men trying in vain to break things up. The entire varsity team, with the exception of the safety man, was down the field and covering the safety man on almost every play. Two fleet yearling backs returned punts only about ten yards during the entire afternoon.

Every member of the Bulldog varsity squad was in uniform this afternoon, including Weddington Kelley, veteran end, who has been out for the past two weeks because of a painfully injured shoulder. Kelley will take part in the scrimmages this week and will go with the team to Yale.

Yale Scrimmages For Georgia Today.
NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 6.—(P) Yale's football squad began its preparations for next Saturday's game with Georgia today with Charles Smith, left halfback, absent because of an eye infection which specialists said will keep him idle for at least two weeks. There is a possibility, according to physicians, that he may be out for the season.

Coch Mal Stevens promoted six men from the gray to the blue squad today, bringing the total strength of the varsity squad to 33. Those promoted included Frank Connor, intercollegiate hammer throwing champion, a guard.

Scrimmages are scheduled for tomorrow and Wednesday.

The Yale Athletic Association announced tonight that 30,000 Legionnaires will attend the game, as its guests.

Carnera Battles Maloney Tonight
BOSTON, Oct. 6.—(P)—Primo Carnera, Italian behemoth, will be given a real test here tomorrow when he encounters Jimmy Maloney, popular Boston heavyweight, and won a highly critical crowd that promises to contribute almost $100,000 into the Boston Garden's coffers.

Both fighters will be equipped with four-proof devices and their every move will not only be scrutinized by an official committee, but also by the newly elected Garden officials, some of whom have threatened to suspend boxing forever in their arena if the bout proves unsatisfactory.

Carnera, who has knocked out 22 of his American opponents, and won some of them in court, will take a fowl from the other, probably will outweigh Maloney by 67 pounds.

Tunney Damage Suit Postponed
NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—(P)—Gene Tunney needs to go to court for eight months more in the suit of Timothy Mara, sports promoter, for a share of Tunney's earnings as heavyweight boxing champion.

Mara's suit, set for trial today, was postponed with consent of both sides until June 27, 1931. Neither Tunney nor Mara was in court.

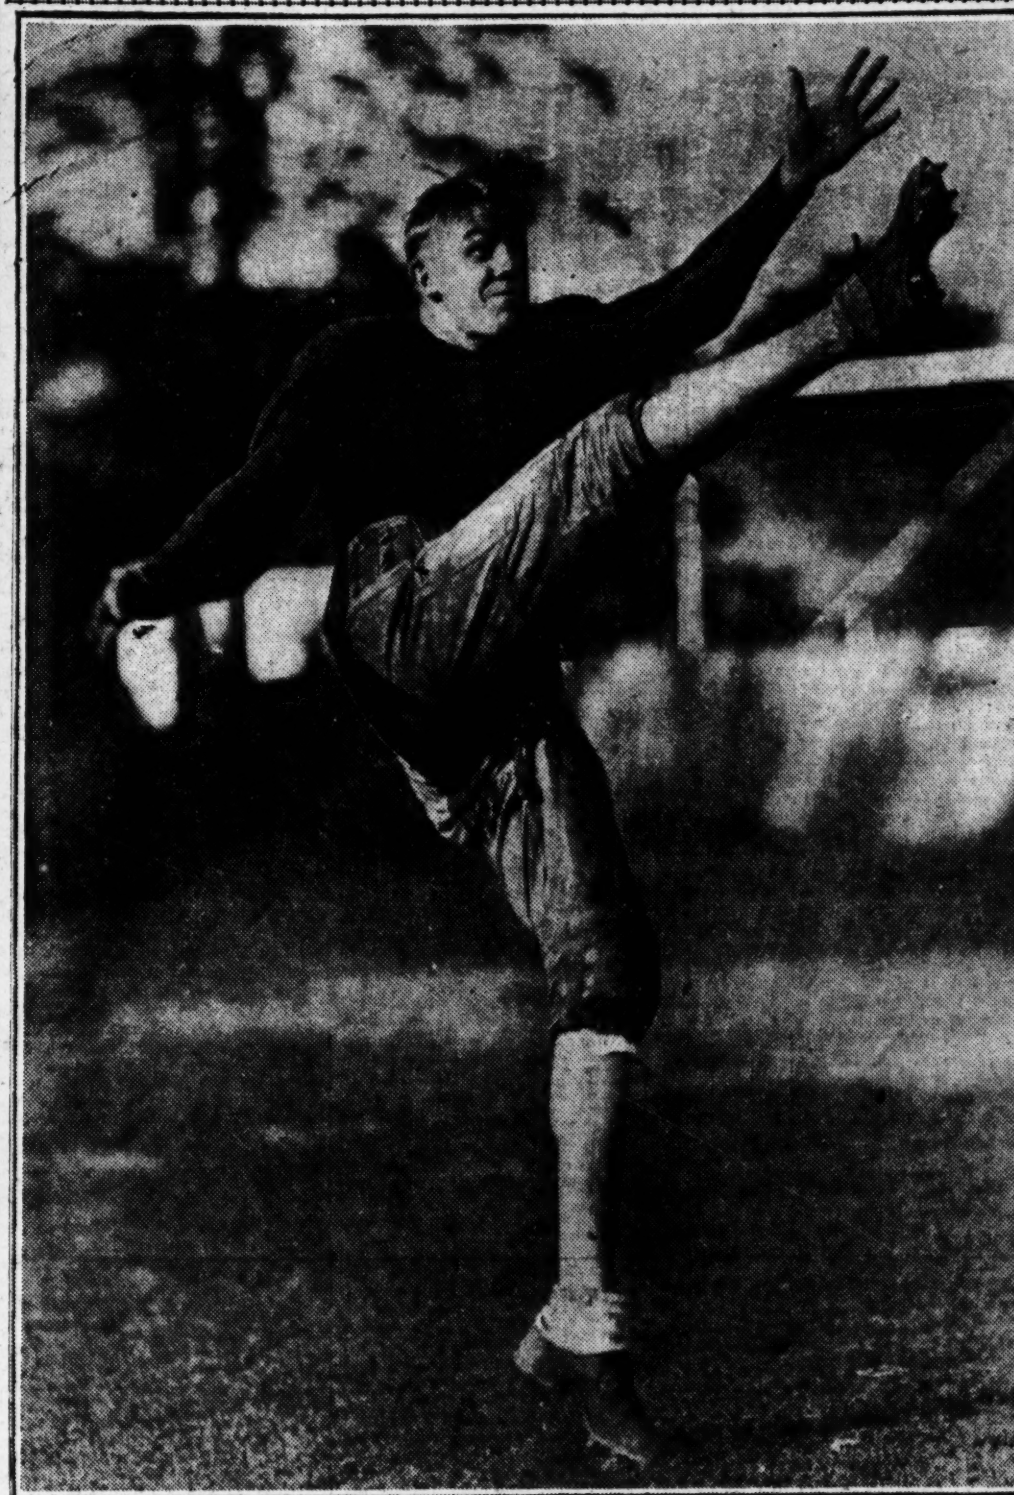

Mara contends he made a contract with Tunney in April, 1928, whereby he was to get a share of Tunney's earnings.

He will stand at the head of Woodward's Belair stud in Prince Georges county, Maryland. His retirement brings to a close a brilliant three-year-old campaign that carried the Fox and his famous riding partner, Earl Sande, victorious through every leading three-year-old stake with the exception of the Travers at Saratoga, in which he finished second to Jim Dandy, a 100-to-1 shot. In addition he won the Saratoga and jockey gold cups, defeating small but select fields of older horses.

Harvest of Bobby's Summer on Display
Atlanta's host of golfers, as well as all the admirers of Bobby Jones—a still more comprehensive term—will have an opportunity this week to view the finest collection of sports trophies ever assembled in one year by the prowess of one individual—the historic cups representing the open and amateur championships of Great Britain and of the United States.

With the addition of the Walker cup, to the winning of which Bobby contributed as much as the law allows, all the major trophies which the world of golf affords will be on display at the Atlanta Athletic Club between the hours of 9:30 and 11:30 every morning this week until Saturday.

What a Face, Shipwreck!

"Shipwreck" Kelley, Kentucky's stellar sophomore halfback last year, when he confined himself to carrying the ball and made life miserable for the opposition as a single-threat man, is going to be even harder to live with this year. "Shipwreck" is working hard at both punting and passing and is fast reaching the point where he may be classed with the three-way boys. From the tight-lipped expression of determination he wears he should realize that ambition before long. (Associated Press photo.)

OWNER RETIRES GALLANT FOX

Champion 3-Year-Old Will Head Bellair Stud in Maryland.

By Orlo Robertson.

Associated Press Sports Writer.
NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—(P)—Retirement of Gallant Fox, champion three-year-old and probably the greatest thoroughbred to step a hoof on American turf since the days of Man o' War, was announced today by his owner, William Woodward.

The Fox, which rose from the ranks of a mediocre two-year-old to the all-time money winning champion with earnings in excess of $327,000, was to have fulfilled several vital engagements, including the rich Latonia championships and the Hawthorne gold cup. Last week, however, he developed a cough and after being out of training for several days Trainer Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons and Woodward decided to retire the big son of Sir Gallahad III.

He will stand at the head of Woodward's Belair stud in Prince Georges county, Maryland. His retirement brings to a close a brilliant three-year-old campaign that carried the Fox and his famous riding partner, Earl Sande, victorious through every leading three-year-old stake with the exception of the Travers at Saratoga, in which he finished second to Jim Dandy, a 100-to-1 shot. In addition he won the Saratoga and jockey gold cups, defeating small but select fields of older horses.

MATMEN TRAIN FOR BOUTS HERE

Rudy Dusek and Chief Marvin Meet in Feature Match.

With all the principals in the city, final workouts will be held today before the double-header heavyweight wrestling card at the auditorium Wednesday night.

Rudy Dusek, one of the game's big shots, is to meet Chief Tom Marvin, the Indian heavyweight, in the feature match, a two-out-of-three-falls event over the two-hour limit.

In the semi-windup Bill Middlekauff, who just a few years ago was playing fullback for the Florida football team, will meet Joe Berger, a tough Chicago heavyweight.

ROUGH BOUT SURE.
Dusek and Marvin, who appear in the feature, are sure to put on a blood and thunder match that will appease the boys who like their stakes rare and their novelties full of bold, bad men. Dusek is billed as "The Nebraska Wildcat" and he lives up to the name. He got it because he is wild.

And when Chief Marvin gets in the ring the other man often dances with tears in his eyes because the guy on his horns is the chief. The chief is one rough customer who is always on the warpath.

Tickets are on sale at the Piedmont Hatters and the Candler building soda fountain.

BIG EARNSHAW AND BOB GROVE HOLD ST. LOUIS

Foxx Hits Home Run With One On in Ninth To Win.

By Grantland Rice.
(Copyright, 1930, for The Constitution by the North American Newspaper Alliance.)
ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6.—Almost surrounded and cut off, the Athletics had to shoot the works in the fifth game of this steamy series for the championship of the world.

It took the brains and courage of Connie Mack, the combined pitching arms of Earnshaw and Grove and the big war races of Jimmie Foxx to beat the sombre Burleigh Grimes and the Cardinals, 2 to 0, and thereby shove Philadelphia within one game of another baseball crown.

For the better part of nine innings Grimes and his famous surf ball remained deadlocked with Mack's two mighty axes, Earnshaw and Grove, but you can gang a man and throw too much power even against a stout heart.

With Mickey Cochrane on first through a walk in the ninth and Simmons retired, Grimes whistled one high and fast along the line of Foxx's chin and the big first baseman broke up the best world series show in years by clubbing the ball deep into the center field bleachers for a home run, scoring Cochrane on the trip. It was a mighty wallop from the bat of a mighty mauler. One of the best, and it sent the Cardinals eastward-bound needing the two remaining games to win, where the Athletics need but one. And the Athletics will be home again when the next charge starts.

There have been few ball games in any world series to equal this final battle in St. Louis before another big, raving mob of western fans who rooted their hearts out for Grimes and the Red Birds until Jimmy Foxx lit the fuse of this four-bagger in the ninth and the ball disappeared from view amid a stricken silence deeper and denser than the silence of the tomb. They may have wished to pay tribute to this blow, but it struck into their hearts like a poisoned poignard, and there was no soul left for any further noise.

NOISE STILLED.
Young Foxx silenced the clang of their bells, the music of their horns and the roar of their voices, with one of the most timely blows ever delivered in a big game.

You could sense drama in overlapping waves from the called upon to make a desperate decision, a decision that might possibly win the game in this one inning. Haas and Boley had gotten on through skillful hitting with one out and Earnshaw was due at bat. Here was the pitcher who had held the Cardinals to two hits in seven innings, who was riding the top of the world, and who looked as if he could pitch shutout ball all afternoon.

But Connie Mack wanted a run. He took the big gamble and sent in Moore to bat for Earnshaw with Bob Grove warming up. And Grove had been working hard the day before. Moore worked his way into a pass that filled the bases with only one out and the top of the Athletic batting order coming up.

ALMOST OVER.

The game looked to be over as almost anything would score a run and there was Grove coming in with his fast ball on a dark, gloomy day. The crowd was tense and silent as Bishop came up. The second baseman finally rapped out to Bottomley at first, and he whipped the ball to the plate to kill off the run. That made two out. It also turned some 36,000 fans into a mass of howling, hat-throwing, back-slapping momentary maniacs.

When Grimes retired Jimmy Dykes for the third out the pocket left the big stars rocking in the gale from human throats. The surf ball king had risen to the top height. He had choked off a deadly looking rally in the nick of time.

Earnshaw, who had allowed but two hits in seven innings, the same Earnshaw who had beaten the Cardinals 6 to 1 in the second battle, was out, but the man taking his place was a big, tall, loose-jointed left-hander named Bob Grove, with a dark background to work against.

Connie Mack's first gamble had failed, but he had the serum ready for anything that might happen in the wild, whiplike left arm of Robert Moses Grove. Mack was a game Mack to win. All afternoon he had been the busiest man on his bench, watching every play, talking with his hitters as they started for the plate, shifting his outfielders, watching every move. He couldn't lose this one with only one pitcher left to face Hallahan, Haines and Grimes again. It was swim or sink.

Grove went breezing along, allowing but one hit. And then at the start of the ninth, Grimes, attempting to muffle Mickey Cochrane hit at bad one, walked the Athletic star. When Grimes retired the always dangerous Simmons, the vocal catatonic broke out again. And just 10 seconds later the ball game blew up in the faces of the multitude after the manner of a sudden, unexpected explosion.

There had been no home runs for some time. But in attempting to wrap a fast one around Foxx's neck, Grimes got the ball on the bat. Foxx isn't any more dangerous than a king cobra. Jimmy gave it the gas and where a moment before there had been an unbelievable pandemonium, there was now the silence of the grave, the sombre silence of the last green mound, as the ball soared far and high against the gray evening sky of the west and hit at last into the center-field stands.

THE BIG PUNCH.

This big punch ended one of the greatest ball games ever played in any world series at any time. It was the climax of a day that saw its share of magnificent pitching and great support.

Young Charley Gelbert, the Cardinal shortstop, ran down to chances. He rushed to his right and his left, scooping up hard chances without a slip or a flinch. He has now accepted his chances in this series without an error, and someone will have to hustle to take the crown from his head as the best of the lot on both teams.

The Cardinals made a great fight in this fifth game despite the weakness of their big hitters. Bottomley, one of the best, has made one single in 20 times at bat. He struck out three times in this game—making his record straight for the series—to tie Hornsby's 1929 hitless mark.

CARDS SILENCED.

Frisch has been far from his best, at bat and around second. Today they were all collared by Earnshaw and Grove, who bore them back with speed, curves and control that could not be touched with any ash furniture in the Cardinals' living room. They could not hit Mack's two aces. And Mack had just one who could hit Grimes at the big moment.

The old spitball star pitched a whole of a game. He had fine support. But you can't win a game without runs. Not often. It was the old story of the big blast. Just as Walter Johnson said before, you can only stop Cochrane, Simmons and Foxx so long. Sooner or later one of them is sure to break out with the explosive that blows away the protecting wires. It happened in the first game in Philadelphia and it happened again in St. Louis in the fifth battle and now the Athletics are headed home where it may happen again.

The Cardinals are trailing by a game, but they are far from through. They have Hallahan and Haines to look after the next two contests, if two more are needed, while Mack must fall back upon Grove and Earnshaw, who have worked four of the five games, and must pick up the pack again.

They show no signs of wear and tear, but Hallahan and Haines are fresher. There is at least a big chance this series will go to seven games. This Cardinal card is never whipped down any stretch.

Philadelphia Fans Cheer Jimmy Foxx

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—(P)—Philadelphia gave one long, loud, rousing cheer for Jimmy Foxx today and then went about business.

The average Philadelphia baseball fan expected the world champion Athletics to come through and thanks to Jimmy Foxx's circuit drive in the ninth inning, they were not disappointed.

The sixth game of the series between the A's and the St. Louis Cardinals, which will be played in Philadelphia on Wednesday, is a sell-out. All persons who bought tickets for the games here were compelled to take them for three games. Consequently there was no rush on the stadium box office today.

The 3,000 bleacher seats will be placed on sale at 8 a. m. Wednesday and it is expected the "endurance line" will form tomorrow.

WYNNE MISSES INJURED TIGERS

Auburn's Full Strength Will Not Be Able To Face 'Gators.

AUBURN, Ala., Oct. 6.—After entering the first two games on their 1936 schedule in almost perfect condition, the Auburn Tigers will probably be unable to use their full strength in their initial Southern conference tilt with Florida in Jacksonville Saturday. A look at Auburn's list reveals that Captain Dunham Harkins, Donald Jones, John Simpkins, Herbert Miller, Erquie Taylor, "Commodore" Wood and Porter Grant are members and that it is not all certain that they will be able to play Saturday.

Captain Harkins is being bothered with probably the worst injury, a cut in the eye received in the Spring Hill game. He will be unable to even run signals this week.

The other members of the ailing troupe are bothered with arm and leg injuries and colds. All except Jones, confined to his room with an attack of the "flu," were out for the initial practice of the week and ran signals.

Cochet Wynne put his proteges down to hard work Monday in preparation for the 'Gators. Improvement was shown in the game last Saturday, but there is still a lot of work to be done.

The starters in Auburn's second game, except Harkins and Jones, ran signals, while two teams engaged in a 45-minute scrimmage.

MACKMEN BEAT CARDINALS, 2-0

By Frank Getty.

Bill Hallahan, who blanked them so effectively Saturday, kept the series from going to the full seven games, as the magnates so devoutly hope it will.

Just who Connie Mack will pitch tonight, in the sixth game at Shibe park remained quite a mystery as the two ball clubs trained for Philadelphia tonight.

Burleigh started off by walking Mickey Cochrane, but the silence of a roar of triumph when Grimes forced Al Simmons to pop to Charley Gelbert in short left.

FOXX HITS HOMER.

This brought up Foxx with his bat of destiny. Jimmy hit the first pitched ball with a terrific impact. "There it goes," roared hundreds in the stands.

Out in left center, Chick Hafey and Taylor Douthitt were racing toward the fence, gazing up into the leaden skies where Foxx's drive was sailing lazily against the rain clouds. So high was the ball hit that at first it was not apparent to every one that it would reach the bleachers.

But it did, with plenty to spare, and while shirt-sleeved fans fought for it, Grimes dashed his glove futilely to the ground and the Cardinals stood around with long faces, sensing that defeat had overtaken them.

This third victory may prove all-important, although the National league champions lost nothing in the way of prestige, and are likely to be hard to beat in Philadelphia on Wednesday, when "Wild Bill" Hallahan will work for them.

The Cards made an effort to keep up their hopes and courage in their half of the ninth, but Grove made short work of them, and every one out in the third, the Red Birds' Hafey faced Grove and popped to Cochrane in front of the plate. Ray Bledsoe batted for George Watkins and walked.

Cowdells' blowing and cheering blew and the crowd stood, cheering for a rally. But Wilson's tap was easy for Grove, who tossed him out, and Charley Gelbert fanned with his bat on his shoulder, to end the game.

OFFENSE IN RAIN.

The game opened under dripping skies, with not enough rain to prevent play and not enough to make every one anxious.

Grimes, as usual, worked hard in the opening inning, but was touched for a needless single by Mickey Cochrane after two were out.

The Cardinals got one of their two hits off Earnshaw in this inning. Sparky Adams singling past Boley, only to die on first.

Grimes set the Mackmen down in order for the next three innings, striking out three of them in this period. In the third, the Red Birds threatened for a moment. Gelbert walked on four pitched balls and Grimes dumped down a neat sacrifice. Douthitt slapped one straight at Jimmy Dykes and the A's third baseman, with memories no doubt, of his misplay which cost his club the fourth game, again pulled a prize boner.

Gelbert had a lead off second and started back to that bag when Dykes came up with the ball. Dykes whirled and started to throw to Bishop who was covering second but elected to get closer to Gelbert to make the trap more certain. But instead of pegging the ball he finally decided to run Gelbert down by himself and wound up by chasing him into second where Gelbert arrived in safety.

Old timers recalled the 1917 series when Zimmerman, third baseman of the Giants, chased Eddie Collins over the plate with the winning run while

Foxx Saves Day After Macks Had Booted Good Chance.

By Eddie Collins.

EN ROUTE TO PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—For intense excitement, nerve strain and leather-lunged cheering, our 2-0 victory over the Cardinals today takes the cake.

A masterful pitching exhibition on both sides ended in the ninth when young Jimmy Foxx hit a home run with Mickey Cochrane on base. That and the pitching were the features.

What a ball game! Five hits for the Athletics and only three for the Cards. Only three men reached second base for St. Louis. That's how dangerous their big guns were with George Earnshaw burning the ball over the plate for seven innings until it looked like a pea and Grove throwing lightning bolts the last two innings.

We threatened in the eighth, and it was then that Grimes began to show the effects of the strain of keeping pace with Earnshaw. After Bing Miller had grounded to Gelbert, Mule Haas beat out a punt to Grimes. He then stole second, being declared safe after Frisch popped the ball. Boley bounced a hit off Grimes' glove, which put runners on first and third, with one out.

Here was our chance, and the tense silence on the bench was nothing compared to the frozen hush that came over the grandstand. Connie Mack decided to make the most of it, so he sent Jim Moore, our rookie outfielder, to bat for Earnshaw. Grimes was crafty and he walked Moore, filling the bases.

Bishop and Dykes, however, were not equal to the task and Grimes shut our rally off without a score. There was a great chance to win and we bootied it.

Jimmy looked better at the plate today than ever before in this series and I guess Connie figured: "Well, he is due to win it for us."

It was evident after the seventh inning that the game was going to be won on just such a wallop. There is no question that the pitching has been remarkable in this series. And such battles are always tough to lose when one little slip or one poorly pitched ball is apt to cost the game.

In the games so far it seems to me that the Cards have played the same regular, steady game which has made them National league champions, whereas our play has been more or less spotty. We went right to the stride in Philadelphia, but far from it in the first two games in St. Louis.

True, Hallahan silenced us completely, as he would have done against most any club. But we were not on our toes or alive to grasp the opportunities offered us Sunday. I will admit we did not deserve to win then.

I haven't any idea right now whom Manager Mack will pitch Wednesday. I do know that both Bob Grove and George Earnshaw will be in the line, either is capable of doing good work, and that it is sure to be one or the other.

The Cards are the team that are worried tonight. I will say that they deserve a lot of credit for the way that they came back. They have a reputation for putting on winning spurts, I understand, and it is a most commendable one to have.

They are playing the American league champions now, and take it from me, they have come forward as far as they are going to now.

"Remember, there are ladies present," Mr. Earnshaw said.

"Any lady who knows what I said to Grimes just now is not any lady," said Mr. Kommel, agitating his fingers in an angry running fire of abuse.

FAMOUS EARS.

Mr. Cochrane's ears have been the subject of considerable personal repartee in the two games that Mr. Grimes has pitched. In the first game at Philadelphia Mr. Grimes mentioned the matter of ears and Cochrane's rejoinder was a home run. Today Grimes resumed the subject of Cochrane's ears and, while that sensitive young man got no home run, himself it was a home run that brought him in with a run which was a sufficient rebuke.

The customers raised a big cry that certainly didn't express jubilation as the old solid and somewhat elephantine Mr. Foxx hoisted his fly ball and sent it sailing into the sky and Taylor Douthitt, the center fielder, backed up, reaching for it, until he was chafing his shoulder blades against the wall.

The traveling party was moving back to Philadelphia tonight and this was the last positive action that St. Louis was to see.

The traveling party will be considerably reduced now. There may be only one more game and a number of the baseball experts from other major league towns and the western minor league points, are dropping out to return to their homes.

Also most of those enthusiasts, who start out eager and excited to follow the show from town to town at their own expense, have wearied of the standing around and sitting around in the hotels and the sleeping in berths, and have checked out quickly to follow the rest of the series per newspaper or radio.

ONE MORE OUT.

Mr. George Getz, of Chicago, the millionaire, who not only finances and collects rebaboons for pleasure but also cultivates the acquaintance of prize fighters and managers as a recreation, was seen limping to a taxicab this evening.

"I am going home to rest my feet," Mr. Getz said, "and after several days of uninterrupted gazing at the family type of baseball nut, I think it will be a pleasure just to sit and gaze at the intelligent countenances of my bebaboons."

It is becoming sadly apparent that the world series G. A. R.'s are a dwindling group. One by one they drop out, the old ball players and managers who first came to the world series years ago all brisk and thirsty and prepared to sit up against the hardest all night sitters up in the world.

FLOORS TOO HARD.

Those who carry on have been shunning the hard floors of the hotel lobbies which are very trying on the feet and retiring to their rooms early in the evening where, more or less, they put on old-fashioned nightgowns and take their pills before turning in.

To such as these, the world series ball games nowadays have come to represent no more than business sessions of the annual reunion and the sitting and the pitching are scarcely more entertaining than the reading of the secretary's minutes at an annual

GRIMES LOST HEART-BREAKER, FRISCH WRITES

All Pitchers Brilliant in Fifth Game; Cards Out To Even Series.

Second Baseman of the Cardinals.

EN ROUTE TO PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—It certainly was heart-breaking for Burleigh Grimes to lose today's game on one pitched ball. His work until then was magnificent. He did not allow a Philadelphia runner to reach second base for seven innings, and then, in the eighth, he worked out of a hole to prevent a run after the bases had been filled with only one out.

Foxx, of course, in breaking up the game, hit the ball hard, and in addition to the power he had on the drive, he had the wind in his favor.

We had several chances to get some runs for Grimes, but we simply could not do anything with Earnshaw and Grove on the dark day. Like Grimes, both the Philadelphia pitchers had terrific speed and their control was fine.

Grimes, in losing his second tough game of the series, gave only two hits for seven innings and but five all day. When he lost the first game of the series he allowed only five hits. He certainly is due for some good luck here shortly, and I hope we can get it for him before this series is over.

We could solve Earnshaw and Grove for only three hits, which is

th. lowest total we've had in any game during the series. Even so, we had several chances to drive in runs, but just could not get the wood against the ball solidly at the right moments. Grimes himself tried his best to break up the game against Earnshaw in the seventh, when, with two men on base, he hit a hard drive to right center, but it was caught by Haas after a long run.

We have started back for Philadelphia right after the game and will resume the series' play there Wednesday. That will be the sixth game. Manager Street is not sure as to his pitcher, but he is likely to send Bill Hallahan back to the mound. Bill pitched remarkable baseball last Sunday when he shut out the Athletics on seven hits.

I believe our pitching staff is in much better shape than Philadelphia's for the rest of the series, and I am confident we will even this thing up again Wednesday. If we do, we'll play a seventh game at the home of the Athletics.

Booth's Improved Passing Features Strong Yale Attack---Roper

PASS DEFENSE ONLY WEAKNESS SHOWN BY BLUE

Princeton's Quick Attack Surprised Amherst. Penn Is Good.

By Bill Roper.
Football Coach, Princeton University
(Copyright, 1930, for The Constitution by the North American Newspaper Alliance.)
PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 6.—The results of Saturday's games ran largely to form.

Yale showed strength against Maryland, winning 40-13. Booth, as usual, played an outstanding game. New Haven boy has developed into a great threat. Last year he was a magnificent runner and a good punter, but not much of a passer. This year his passing is as good as his running and punting.

The Blue attack on the whole was very strong, and the two complete sets of backs used all showed to advantage. If Yale revealed any weakness, it was in its defense against the forward pass.

Princeton did a trifle better than anticipated against Amherst, though there were a lot of weak points in the Tigers' play. The Princeton players followed the ball well and showed plenty of fire and dash.

Mostre is an inspiring leader, which is good fortune for us. Good leadership on the field is a big asset in football today, and a captain often makes the team.

Nothing counts as much in any game as getting the jump on an opponent at the very outset. On the first play James made a pretty run through the right side of the Amherst line for 60 yards. This run came just at the proper time, and while Princeton did not get a touchdown immediately afterward or on the next play or two, as they should have, Amherst was put on the defensive and a blocked kick led to the first score.

The Tigers showed their best football in the first quarter. Throughout the second half the ball changed hands repeatedly, with neither team having much advantage. If anything, Amherst showed the greater offensive strength in this half, but the Princeton line held firm under the shadow of its goal on two or three occasions. The Princeton players came through the game in fine physical condition.

The Army ran up a large score against Furman. The West Pointers revealed a versatile attack from the double wing back formation.

Two Harvard teams got into action at the stadium and both showed plenty of strength. The first team, from Vermont, at the Coast Guard team. A double-header as an opening feature is a very good idea, for it enables a coach to try out a lot of men.

Pennsylvania and Cornell showed about as much strength as any teams in the east. Penn winning from Swarthmore, 61-0, and Cornell swamping a strong Niagara team, 41-14. Penn has a beautiful offense, pivoting about gentle, Masters and Greener. The attack, built around a running motion, is well conceived and effectively executed.

With a clever use of the lateral and forward pass, Cornell showed great offensive strength against Niagara. Dobie's team has a strong running game and a very clever short forward pass. The Blue team at this writing look stronger than they have for years.

West Virginia held Pitt to a fairly close score and showed considerable rushing strength themselves in the last half. Carnegie Tech had little difficulty with Thiel. Bates gave Dartmouth a good game. William and Mary showed a good passing attack against the Navy, scoring a touchdown after a long run. Syracuse had a strong attack against Hobart.

July, Walker Hounds Clash in Hunt Trials

Georgia Fox Hunters Will Loose Dogs in First Cast This Morning.

By Ralph McGill.
Fox hunters of Georgia are to loose their hounds this morning in the first cast of the state trials at Wayside.

Now it happens that Wayside isn't far from Hancock county, where the July strain started. Hancock county, where there is just one blood for chasing foxes—the July blood.

When Miles Harris came back to his farm in Hancock county some 50 years or more ago, he brought with him from Maryland a couple of fox hounds, June and July. June died but July lived to bring into the world a litter of reddish-brown and white puppies.

From them sprang the July breed which Miles Harris guarding it jealously sided by the Ridleys and the Kirkpatricks, for this July had a great mouth. She could run like a wolf from the north and she could trail like a ghost. Her whelps were worth guarding.

Now in Tennessee and Kentucky the cold steel will come out in defense of the Walker hound. Pistols have spoken in behalf of the Walker hound's superiority over the July. The Walker hound is a magnificent hound. He wins most of the national trials, but in Hancock and Bibb and Jasper he is just a rabbit hound. And the story of his downfall runs thusly.

There are sections in South Georgia where the tread of the tourist has fallen but lightly. If at all. There are sections where the whirr of the spinning mills is not to be heard. There are many proud families left whose lands and homes are the same as they were years and years ago.

They say of two of them that their girls are always beautiful, their men brave, their horses all great hunters and their fox hounds faster and sweeter of mouth than any others.

"ONCE UPON A TIME." And years ago there was an old fox in Hancock county who had outwitted and out-lived many fox hounds. He was known as old Scarface, and many were the hunts organized to catch him.

In one of the proud families was a girl and in the other a boy, and each was in love with the other. But the boy owned a pack of fine Walker hounds and the girl a pack of the July breed.

The story goes that she matched her pack of July hounds against his Walkers, with herself as the prize. If old Scarface was caught by the Walker hounds she was to marry the boy. If the July hounds got him she was to go into a cheerful old spinsterhood so far as that particular boy was concerned.

AN EYEWITNESS. Old Alex, a negro servant on the place, gone these many years, left this story.

"Young master come in late, an' punch up de fish. 'Alex,' he say, 'git me up at 3 o'clock. Bring up Speed, Drive, Belle and Jack.' I knowed dey was a fox hunt on. Jes' houn's dey wuz!"

"Next mawnin' we drives out to de rinks wheah Ole Scarface lives, an' in de hurry is Young Missus an' standin' by her is Ole Jim with four houn's. I knowed somethin' wuz up. Young Missus is cool and collect. So is Young Master."

"It ain't long afore them houn's strike Ole Scarface. He is laughin' at 'em. All fox hounds in de county been trained on Ole Scarface."

"AUGUST IS THE NAME. 'Refo' long we head 'em down de creek. Ole Drive was close on 'im. Den I heah one of dem July houn's clost in. Den dey lose 'em. I figger Ole Scarface zone out on a tree over at creek."

"Den dey go away. Ole Scarface is worried. Ain't no sound for a long time. I stands to pray. An' den I see 'em a-comin'. Jim had been a-ridin' after 'em."

"'Alex,' he say, 'take dem Walker houn's an' let 'em run rabbits in de gubden and name 'em August, 'cause dey sho' does come after July!'"

The young man lost, but he won his prize by letting his Walker hounds go and getting a pack of July's. And that is why the Walker hound can get no foothold in south Georgia in the court of Hancock and those about it.

They think down there that the Walkers always come after the July's.

The July hounds will predominate in the Georgia meet this week. It would be a terrible blow if a Walker hound should win. They will have two chances, the All-Age, which is to be run the first three days, and the Derby, which will occupy the final two days of the week.

BEARS' DEFEAT NOT SURPRISING TO COACH JONES

Washington Had Strong and Veteran Eleven. Stanford Improved.

By Howard Jones.
Football Coach, University of Southern California.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 6.—(NANA.)—Washington State's smashing victory over California provided the fireworks of the Pacific coast Saturday, the team from the north-west displaying a powerful running attack and some intricate pass formations to score a 16 to 0 triumph.

In my prediction I had favored California by a slight edge, at the same time pointing out that a Washington State team was not at all likely to spend two weeks conducting a coaching school at Washington State last summer and failed to hear anybody offering excuses for the Cougar defeat.

Coach Hollingbery lost only a few men from last year, and in picking California to win I was considerably in doubt as to whether the Golden Bears, with a liberal sprinkling of new players, would be able to stand off the veteran Washington State team.

SCORE SURPRISING. The size of the score, 16 to 0, was far more surprising than Washington State's victory. It is a clear indication that Washington State is much stronger than it is supposed to be. I know that California's defeat does not mean that Nibs Price will have a mediocre team. Later in the season the Bears are not at all likely to give them a tough enough Saturday, only Washington State happened to be even stronger.

Last year Washington State out-gained California 14 to 0, when the Bears opened up their passing attack which caught their foes napping. Saturday Hollingbery did some passing himself, completing 13 tosses for 135 yards. The Cougars also made 201 yards running the ball from scrimmage, while California could get but 90, plus 151 on passes.

FINE BALL CARRIERS. Elmer Schwartz, Porter Lankhart and Carl Klingner did some fine ball carrying for the winners, and the playing of Quarterback Tonkin, who guided his team's attack and wasn't fazed by the Cougars, also had a lot to do with the victory.

Stanford's 20 to 0 win over Santa Clara shows that Glenn Warner's team is improved over last year, if you care for the comparative score method of figuring. Santa Clara sprang an upset to win, 13 to 7, last season, but Stanford was master of the situation at all times Saturday.

Moffatt and Rother, halfback and fullback, did some fine ball carrying, but it was actually several breaks of the game that enabled Stanford to run up three touchdowns.

Stanford returned a 40 yard pass to the first tally in the third quarter. He next passed 30 yards to Rother, who ran 40 for the second tally in the final quarter. Rother intercepted a pass and raced 55 yards for the other touchdown.

TROJANS WIN. Southern California defeated Oregon State, 27 to 7, in a hard-fought game which stood, 14 to 7, at half time. The Trojans led 14 to 7 at the fourth quarter when we got two more touchdowns.

Naturally, I could not be displeased with the showing of any team, as I have run the first three days, and the Derby, which will occupy the final two days of the week.

Duffield and Johler, our quarter-backs, did all the scoring, each getting two touchdowns.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 6.—After a glorious day at the Lexington Trots, during which there were more miles trotted and paced around 2:00 than at any other single meeting ever held here, the weather man became unkind and provided two raw and cold days just when trainers were getting ready to shoot several of their charges for fast miles.

It is quite likely that the champion filly, Hanover's Bertha, 3:40, will get another opportunity to reduce her record even though weather prevented the great filly from starting against her record on Wednesday.

The record meeting will be continued several days at Lexington after the days of actual racing have been concluded. There has been no season thus far in the history of the harness horse sport that has brought out as many sensational fast performers, the new 2:00 additions numbering five, including Minny Direct 1:59, Scotland 1:59, May E. Grattan 1:59, Widow Grattan 2:00 and Hanover's Bertha, 3:40, and many others have either trotted or paced closed to the 2:00 circle.

Giant Fullbacks To Clash Saturday

HAMILTON, N. Y., Oct. 6.—A duel involving two giant fullbacks will be fought out here Saturday when Colgate meets Lafayette on Whitall field in one of the big major games of the football campaign.

Colgate will be represented in this individual battle by Len Macaluso while the Leopards will rely on Captain Woodfin. Macaluso started the season weighing 210 pounds but has been trained down to 190. He stands six feet, three inches tall. Woodfin is about six feet tall and weighs an even 235 pounds.

Macaluso, in addition to being a powerful plunger, is also a talented kicker and passer and a strong and consistent performer at backing up the line. Woodfin, like Macaluso, is a triple threat and also a senior with two years of varsity experience as a backfielder.

BOXER TOO. CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 6.—Reuben Seigel, left Jewish tackle of Clemson College's Technician eleven, is an amateur heavyweight boxer of some note.

JACKETS OPEN PREPARATIONS FOR CARNEGIE

Varsity Runs Signals as Devils Work To Learn Tartan Formations.

By Herb Clark.
Two offenses were in the process of being polished at the Rose Bowl field Monday afternoon as Georgia Tech's yellow jackets opened preparations for their game with Carnegie Tech's Tartans—who, says Coach-Scout Mike Miles, have "every thing."

The Jacket varsity having come through a tilt with South Carolina last Saturday without noticeable injuries—Clint Ezell had two fingers bandaged Monday; Duck McKee went a slim strip of plaster about his jaw; all others were present and snapping along with lots of life—and without revealing an offense to whatever members of the Tartan intelligence bureau were present, was in one corner of the field running signals in profusion.

DEVILS AT STUDY. The Grey Devils were in another corner endeavoring to grasp the inner workings of the Skibo formations that they may present them to the varsity in scrimmages today and Wednesday, the two sessions remaining before the Jackets step aboard their train for Pittsburgh.

These maneuvers which Walter P. "Tom" honor" during the winter, spring and summer and "coacher" during the fall, has figured out for the leads from the Smoky City snuff shop. The Jackets will go one way—the backs go another—id all of a sudden they come together and start for new places. Houdini is not a strong one; played a 6-6 tie with Miami Saturday, and Miami previously had held Indiana to two touchdowns. I expect Ohio State to be stronger, but how strong is a question.

Purdue looked a lot better against Baylor than reports indicated. Our scout says that Baylor had a big team full of fire and are opponents not to be despised. Purdue has punch, stamina and elusiveness and will be tough.

Illinois, winning from Iowa State by one touchdown, showed that we have a long way to go. We are suffering from center trouble and must get more strength in the middle.

Michigan State proved even tougher for Michigan than expected, but Michigan would have escaped a scoreless tie with better generalship at the goal line. They were constantly threatening to score. The loss of Hewitt, end, one of the aggressive forces of the team for the season, was a blow to Michigan. The Michigan line looks powerful.

Although the Oklahoma team is said to be stronger than usual, ordinarily it should not rate to beat a team like Iowa. It looks as if Coach Ingwersen has his hands full patching the holes left by the loss of veteran material through the Big Ten ruling.

Wisconsin clicked nicely against Carleton and Lawrence but it is hard to tell about a one-sided game like this. Judgment on the Badgers must be deferred. Coach Stagg's "Flanked" pass formation was effective in defeating Ripon, but his line was not as impressive.

In the Mjaskov valley Nebraska displayed power by trampling the Texas Aggies under a rushing attack with Junior Jackets Prep for Game. While their first and second string brethren were zooming through plays by the score in a drive to polish their attack for the Carnegie Tech game at Pittsburgh next Saturday, the third varsity stepped over to the lower field at the Rose Bowl to test the mettle of the freshman squad, preparing for their initial clash of the season.

When Red Barron brings his Monroe Aggies here for a game.

Coach Clay expects a tough game Saturday, as the Aggies are reputed to have plenty of power and fight.

The general opinion here since Georgia Tech's South Carolina game is that the Devil Eleven will have its work cut out for next Saturday.

Europeans To Buy American Trotters

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Judging from present indications, European horsemen will begin their selection of American bred trotters this fall right where they left off last season and as the demand for trotters on the European continent last season reached heights unknown since pre-war days, it is quite certain that several of the stars of the American trotting tracks will find new homes abroad within the next few weeks.

Last season Hazelton 2:00 3-4, Sam Williams 2:01 3-4 and Walter Dear, 3, 2:02 3-4 topped the large list of horses sent abroad and since each of these as well as many other American bred horses have been racing sensationally over the leading European tracks, it is likely that a much larger group will be exported this fall and winter.

The crack trotting colt, Legality, 3, 2:02 3-4, was the first star performer to be sold to foreign parties during recent weeks having been sold to Italian horsemen for a reported price of $15,000.

The German horseman, B. J. Alkema, who usually selects a large number of horses in this country, both for campaigning purposes and for the breeding ranks, bought several head of the recent European sale through the Kentucky breeder, Charles E. Thompson.

The Old Glory sale, held at New York City last Thanksgiving time, annually draws many of the best horses offered at auction each season, and no doubt a number of European buyers will be on hand.

Women Bowlers Organize League

Women duckpin bowlers of the city will start the women's league scheduled at 8 o'clock Wednesday night on the Atlanta Bowling Alley with four teams entered.

Teams represented included Southern Railroad, Atlanta Paper Company, Southern Bell and the Walter Chandler club. Other teams desiring to enter the league are requested to communicate with Mrs. Marie Whelan at Walnut 5725.

Vandy's Decisive Win Is Surprise to Zuppke

Notre Dame and Northwestern Impressive in Defeating Strong Southern Teams.

By Bob Zuppke.
Football Coach, University of Illinois.
CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 6.—Although I guessed Minnesota to beat Vanderbilt Saturday, I expected a tight game and a Vanderbilt victory by a close score would not have surprised me. But Vanderbilt scored five touchdowns to one by Minnesota, which certainly was unexpected.

The game demonstrated that those who profit by the pass shall also perish by it, for Minnesota's wild tosses were turned into scores by Vanderbilt. It is a dangerous thing to pass in your own territory, especially if you do not have skilled throwers and receivers. Southern Methodist got away with it, but Minnesota is new to the open game and her line-men probably interfered with each other and couldn't get around fast enough.

Notre Dame and Northwestern stand out as football teams of great potential promise, judging from their successful openings against Southern Methodist and Tulane.

True, Notre Dame broke a tie to win in the closing minutes, but the Irish deserved the victory. My observer tells me there was no question of the justice of the decision for interference with a pass receiver which gave Rockne's crew their opportunity.

Cochran R. Morrison, Methodist were masters in handling the ball on passes and their receivers performed marvelously, but the Texans were helpless against Notre Dame's running attack. When Savolant ran 98 yards from the kickoff to score, it meant fine interference.

Northwestern's defeat of Tulane was much less decisive than I expected for the Wildcats might well have doubled the score if Coach Hanley had used his first-stringers more. Northwestern's line was too big and strong defensively for the lighter Tulane wall. The southerners may not be as strong as supposed, but Northwestern probably is good.

HOOSIERS WEAK. Ohio State's 23 points against Indiana in the only Big Ten contest looked impressive, but I am afraid that Indiana is even weaker than supposed. Our Illinois "B" team, certainly not a strong one, played a 6-6 tie with Miami Saturday, and Miami previously had held Indiana to two touchdowns. I expect Ohio State to be stronger, but how strong is a question.

Purdue looked a lot better against Baylor than reports indicated. Our scout says that Baylor had a big team full of fire and are opponents not to be despised. Purdue has punch, stamina and elusiveness and will be tough.

In the Mjaskov valley Nebraska displayed power by trampling the Texas Aggies under a rushing attack with Paul in the van. The Aggies are a strong team, and this indicates that it is going to be hard to wrest the Big Six crown from Nebraska.

INJURIES FORM MAIN PROBLEM AT OGLETHORPE

Backfield Hurt by Absence of Stars; Scrimmage Work Starts.

By Jack Troy.
With the Manhattan game just over the hill, Coach Harry Robertson has a double task on his hands at Oglethorpe—the burnishing of his team's play and the healing of his injured.

The injured problem seems to be the main one at present, with Claude Herrin probably out for the season, Jenny Woodward wearing a guard over a broken nose and Frank Anderson, Jr., still out of action with the knee which was wrenched in the Georgia game two weeks ago.

Woodward has been working out with the squad, being forced to travel lightly, however, while Anderson was still in civilian clothes and limping Monday afternoon.

Robertson's problem was somewhat eased Monday, however, as John Patrick and Spud Kratz, linemen who have been out since the Georgia clash, returned to the battle front. Curley Fulton, the other casualty from the Bulldog game, who came back Saturday, was hurt early in Monday's drill but went back into the scrimmage later.

The varsity, opening its final intensive drive to reach a peak for the Manhattan clash Friday night in New York, looked good in the drill Monday, pounding through the freshman squad for a quartet of touchdowns with little trouble and then settling back to hold the yearlings on the defensive.

Ray Walker, who has been showing to advantage lately, filled Anderson's shoes at quarterback early in the scrimmage, while Billy James took over the job as the drill neared its close. Walker flipped two passes, both to Lefty Syper, for the opening pair of touchdowns. Dapper Myers stepped through a broken field nicely for the third score, while Dave Turner swept around end for the final.

The Petrel spirit is good, and they are showing a brand of co-ordination which will make them hard for Manhattan to handle.

Emory Junior Track Team Hard at Work

VALDOSTA, Ga., Oct. 6.—Facing probable contests with the University of Florida freshmen and Emory University freshmen, the Emory Junior college track team is doing some hard work in preparation for the spring meets.

A majority of the trackmen of last year are back with quite a number of promising new men on hand. The directors of the track work expect to develop a good team.

HIGHLIGHTS OF WALL STREET

By CHARLES W. STORM,
Editor, the News Service of Wall Street.

(Copyright, 1930, by The Constitution by the New American Newspaper Alliance.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The general stock market in selling down again to new low levels reflects the unwillingness of those who have cash to purchase stocks and the desire of those who have shares to sell them. In view of this condition the professional al bears continue to have things all their own way and are able to bring about sharp concessions in prices.

With the establishment of new low levels today sentiment in Wall Street assumed a darker shade of blue than at any time since the November smash. The most depressing phase of today's weakness was the ease with which the so-called high grade, and good seasoned investment stocks sold off under comparatively small offerings.

HUNTING RUMOR MONGERS.

The shrinkage in quoted market values has become a point where everybody is becoming a part of the circulation of unfavorable rumors whether the stories are based on fact or not. The stock exchange is doing its part in ferreting out the destroyers of values and has issued a request to its members that they furnish the institution with copies of all telegraph messages that may have been sent out relative to the financial condition of members.

It is also learned that one stock exchange house, because of the issuance of bearish information on one of the amusement stocks, has had a member brought up before the stock exchange authorities to explain the action.

DEPRESSING CONDITIONS.

Wall Street is now going through one of the most depressing periods in its history. Not only are prices of stocks declining but there is practically no business. The overhead of the brokers' offices, containing, pinch more tightly daily and the outlook is not at all cheering.

The first of the year is expected to witness a number of consolidations among brokerage houses. Operating expenses have been cut to the bone and still complaints of insufficient commissions continue to be heard. The number of employees and the reductions in salaries announced throughout the year.

WESTINGHOUSE BREAKS.
Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing stock continued to be one of the weakest features on the list. The stock was sold both for long as well as short account because of persistent reports that the company will not show the dividend earned this year by reason of smaller revenues from the radio business.

Another discouraging development in the day's trading was that a number of insiders of different companies who were conspicuous last week for their support of the market, today sold their shares, lowering the prices at which they are being offered. This support, thus indicating that even the few cheerful people are losing confidence in their own securities.

ANALYSTS' VIEW.
Improvement was reported in the copper industry but the copper shares were also under selling pressure.
